Nixon Names
Ambassadors
To 5 Countries

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon is sending five men—all but one experienced foreign service officers—to represent the United States in new ambassadorial assignments.

The appointments, announced at the Western White House Wednesday, include: Graham A. Martin to Italy; Douglas MacArthur II, nephew of the late Gen. Douglas MacArthur, to Iran; Vincent de Roulet, mayor of the village of North Hills, N.Y., to Jamaica; Robinson McIlvaine to the Republic of Kenya, and John Patrick Walsh to Kuwait.

De Roulet, 43, Los Angeles-born, is the only one taking his first diplomatic job. He has been chairman of the board of the Patrino Corp. and of Towne Oller & Associates.

Martin, 56, of Thomasville, N.C., is currently special assistant to the secretary of state for refugee and migration affairs. Born in Mars Hill, N.C., he received the State Department's Distinguished Honor Award two years ago.

In Rome, he will succeed Ambassador H. Gardner Ackley, who is leaving government service.

MacArthur, 60, born in Bryn Mawr, Pa., has been ambassador to Austria since 1967 and a foreign service officer since 1935. He previously held various ambassadorial posts in Asia and Europe.

In Tehran he will succeed Armin H. Meyer, who has been named ambassador to Japan.

McIlvaine, 56, has held high level positions in the State Department and is regarded as a top expert on African affairs. He formerly was editor-publisher of the weekly newspaper Archive in Downingtown, Pa., his home town.

Walsh, 50, a career diplomat from Chicago, received the State Department's Superior Honors Award in 1967. Since last February, he has been acting executive secretary of the State Department.

year of Soviet occupation started on the stroke of noon with blasts of horns from nearly every vehicle in the dense midtown traffic.

This was according to a passive demonstration program that started at dawn with tens of thousands of Prague citizens walking to work in a protest boycott of public transport and shops.

Czechoslovaks, mostly young people, poured into Wenceslas Square at noon. They broke into chants of "Russians, go home, Russians, go home," and "long live Dubcek."

Alexander Dubcek headed the ruling Communist party when Warsaw Pact troops invaded a year ago to crush the Dubcek program of democratization.

There were also hooting, derogatory chants of "Hu-sak, Hu-sak," for Gustav Husak, the pro-Soviet party leader who succeeded Dubcek last April.

Many Czechoslovaks stood on the sidewalks applauding as the young demonstrators started a slow-moving parade through the square and into the major thoroughfares at one end.

A few minutes later, the great crowd surged back through the square to the opposite end, site of the St. Wenceslas Statue and National Museum, symbols of protest the past year against the occupation.

Several hundred massed around the statue and some climbed it. This has been forbidden since Husak took over.

Riot units in armored cars rolled into the square and commanded the crowd to disperse, setting off choruses of whistling.

Shell after shell of tear gas was fired near the statue but three times the crowd, choking and coughing, returned.

One group of young Czechoslovaks was seen charging the armed riot police with their fists.

In Brno, Czechoslovakia's second largest city, truncheon-swinging police broke up a 45-minute demonstration by about 5,000 persons in the central square. The crowd had been placing candles and flowers at the spot where a young student was killed in the Russian takeover a year ago.

Curfew Quiets
Niagara Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — City officials were hopeful today that peace had been restored to two racially troubled sections after three nights of vandalism and assaults by young negroes.

A sunset-to-sunrise curfew went into effect at 9 p.m. Wednesday in the East Falls Street and Highland Avenue sections as police stood by, prepared to arrest violators.

Unlike Sunday, Monday and Tuesday night, when more than 40 persons were arrested and 15 injured, Wednesday night was quiet. Police reported no arrests or violent incidents.

Ton Of Bodies
Found Along
Battered Coast

GULFPORT, Miss. (AP) — Searchers scouring the hurricane-battered areas of nearby Pass Christian found "a ton of bodies since daylight" today.

Mississippi Gov. John Bell Williams immediately flew to the area which was crushed by Hurricane Camille.

"I can give you no exact number," he said after Executive Secretary Cecil Yarbrough of the state building commission told newsmen of the additional bodies found in Pass Christian.

Yarbrough is Williams' chief assistant at Pass Christian.

"I can safely say it's over 200," Williams said of the coast's total death toll. "How many more, goodness only knows." Williams earlier estimated the toll at 230 dead and expected it to rise.

A spokesman for the Seabee battalion leading the cleanup in Pass Christian said workers found "many more bodies in trees, under roofs, in bushes, everywhere" Wednesday.

Pass Christian is about 15 miles west of Gulfport and bore the main brunt of the storm when it moved inland with 190 mile an hour winds late Sunday night.

Counting deaths in Louisiana, hit first by the storm, and from flooding in Virginia and West Virginia, Camille's toll stood at 383.

SAIGON (AP) — Three companies of U.S. infantrymen killed more than 100 North Vietnamese 31 miles southwest of Da Nang today as the Americans battled their way toward the wreckage of a downed helicopter in which eight men are believed to have died.

It was the fifth day of hard fighting in the rolling foothills 31 miles south of Da Nang, where sweeping American and South Vietnamese forces have run into heavy resistance since Sunday. Associated Press correspondent Richard Pyle reported from the area that hundreds of reinforcements, including South Vietnamese infantrymen and U.S. Marines, poured into the battle zone.

By nightfall, more than 1,200 U.S. and South Vietnamese were committed to the biggest sustained battle since the Communist command launched its fall campaign Aug. 12.

Military spokesmen claimed more than 400 North Vietnamese killed in the fighting since Sunday. Many were slain by artillery, dive-bombers and helicopter gunships.

At least 27 Americans have been killed and another 150 wounded, field reports said. Pyle reported that medical evacuation helicopters were running all day, lifting out American casualties.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States today accused a Cuban diplomat at the United Nations with having attempted to get a Cuban refugee to undertake a mission "related to the security of the office of the President of the United States."

The diplomat was ordered to leave the United States promptly.

In 1967, 69 Ohio's 640 school districts received $633.8 million in basic allowance funds, compared with the $704.7 million they will receive during the next two years.

Although this is an 11 per cent increase, inflation over the past two years has already wiped away most of it.

Many districts are expected to be in worse shape financially than they were during the past two years. Inflationary pressures show no immediate signs of letting up.

State Fair Opens

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — While the All-Ohio Boys Band and Ohio Youth Choir serenaded state officials and spectators, Gov. James A. Rhodes cut the ribbon this morning to officially open the 116th Ohio State Fair.

The ceremony launched the 12-day run of "ExpoOhio 69," which Rhodes hopes will be the biggest and greatest fair ever held anywhere.

With ideal weather conditions forecast for today, fair officials were expecting opening day attendance to top 200,000.

That would be a good start toward Rhodes' goal of a total attendance of two million to challenge Texas' claim of having the biggest state exposition in the country.

Youth Day activities today were highlighted by a circus, helicopter acrobatics, FAA queen contest and livestock judging.

Featured at the free grandstand were Marv Hopkins, John Davidson, the Baja Marimba Band and the Cowsills.

Admission to the grounds is $1.50 for adults and 25 cents for children under 12. On weekdays until noon, children will be admitted free and can enjoy the rides at half price.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Edwin G. Lawton, Republican candidate for governor, sought a common pleas court injunction Wednesday to bar two state officials from using government booths at the state fair "to promote their political ambitions."

Lawton accused State Auditor Roger Cloud and State Treasurer John D. Herbert of using public funds for "campaign schemes."

Stage Protest

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Women and men prisoners in the Clark County Jail in Springfield created a disturbance Wednesday night.

Prisoners in the women's division started beating on bars and tearing up mattresses and causing other damage, in protest of what they said was the failure of authorities to provide immediate treatment for a woman who became ill.

The men prisoners soon took up the cause, also ripping mattresses and breaking light bulbs.

Jail officials denied reports that tear gas was used on the second floor to restore order.

SAIGON (AP) — The preliminary investigation into the Green Beret murder case ended at Long Binh today with no indication whether the eight U.S. Special Forces men accused of the killing will be brought to trial.

Debbie, Camille
Race Out To Sea

MIAMI (AP) — Hurricane for men to tame—and her killer sister Camille raced today for the open sea on courses that would spare Bermuda their devastating winds.

Debbie packed top winds of 110 m.p.h. Camille, called the worst hurricane to hit the U.S. mainland, rekindled after moving back into water off the mid-Atlantic coast and intensified to 50 m.p.h.

Forecasters predicted Debbie would pass well south of Bermuda and buffet the island with gales but spare it of hurricane force winds and tides.

Camille, given a 50-50 chance of again reaching hurricane force, was expected to pass well north of Bermuda. Moving eastward, the storm was located about 250 miles northwest of the mid-Atlantic island.

At midmorning, Debbie was centered near Latitude 28.6 North, Longitude 64.7 West, or about 265 miles south of Bermuda. The storm was churning north-northeast at 15 m.p.h.

Bermuda, lying directly between the storm systems, enjoyed pleasant weather early today. And while the island was expected to get gale winds, forecaster Raymond Kraft at the National Hurricane Center in Miami, said he expected Bermuda to escape the full fury of hurricane force winds and tides.

"I believe Camille will go across somewhat north of Bermuda first," Kraft said, "and Debbie will follow in a parallel course behind it."

Bermuda, Kraft said, is "sort of in between the two affairs and I believe they're going to stay pretty much in between."

The hurricane center said Debbie was drawn to the north toward the resort island of Bermuda by Camille's passage out to sea after leaving hundreds BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Northern Ireland's ruling Protestant party closed ranks behind Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark Wednesday night despite misgivings about the future of the Protestant reserve police.

No incidents were reported during the night.

The prime minister told the Unionist party caucus that the B-Special police reserves — hated by the Catholic minority in Northern Ireland—would not be inactivated. He said they would man roadblocks and guard various installations outside the areas where Protestants and Catholics battled last week.

Some party leaders had forecast demands for the government's resignation if the B-Specials were disbanded, but they seemed satisfied with the prime minister's statement, they said they were assured that the party would remain in control of the six counties of Northern Ireland, which have a Protestant majority.

Lt. Gen. Sir Ian Freeland, commander of the 6,000 British troops in Ulster, took some of the heat out of the political situation in removing the B-men from riot areas. The move largely satisfied many of the Catholics, who were glad to see the specials march away from their doorsteps and into the countryside.

Pickaway County Airport Authority members were busy today making every effort to obtain $15,000 in donations for the Airport Fund.

A spokesman noted contributions total $35,000 — $15,000 short of the necessary funds needed to purchase the 50-acre tract south of Circleville for construction of a 4,500-foot landing strip.

At least three major industries have not yet contributed to the fund, according to Asa Elsea, chairman of the drive. Indications are, however, pledges or donations are expected "at any time."

Elsea noted today that more support is coming from individuals than had been expected. Several $100 donations have been received from private citizens within the past three days.

Option on the 50-acre tract belonging to Charles Kreisel expires on Friday — deadline for collecting the $50,000 for land purchase.

A $100,000 grant from the state has been appropriated for the Pickaway County Airport with another $50,000 to follow. The state funds, however, all hinge on Pickaway County's responsibility to provide the land.

Contributions are still being accepted at P. O. Box 1969, or by calling Asa Elsea, or by contacting a member of the Airport Authority.

Storms Hit
Midcontinent

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thunderstorms slapped parts of the midcontinent and the South with heavy rain today while western Virginia counted a rising toll of dead from its worst flooding in 33 years.

Occasionally heavy thunderstorms hit scattered areas from the southern Rockies through the Mississippi Valley and into the Southeast.

Nearly 2 inches of rain soaked Muscle Shoals, Ala., before daybreak, and a similar amount poured onto Vichy, in central Missouri. A tornado dipped into Rolla, Mo., south of Vichy, Wednesday night and knocked down power lines and uprooted trees. No injuries were reported.

Heavy rain also fell in east-central Kansas and local flash flooding was forecast.

Clear and sometimes crisp weather dominated most of northern half of the country. Temperatures fell into the 40s and 50s from the northern Great Lakes into interior New England.

Anti-Israeli Wave Follows Mosque Blaze

JERUSALEM (AP) — A fire today burned out the east wing of Old Jerusalem's El Aksah Mosque, located on one of Islam's holiest sites. Anti-Israeli demonstration broke out among the city's 65,000 Arabs.

Fortunately the fire did not spread to the Dome of the Rock Mosque, 500 feet away and one of Islam's holiest shrines. It is on the site from which Moslem tradition says the Prophet Mohammed ascended into heaven, leaving his footprint on a rock.

The cause of the fire was not known immediately.

The Israeli government announced an official investigation. Prime Minister Golda Meir called an emergency Cabinet session and expressed "shock and deep sorrow at this fire in this place hallowed by Moslems."

Shortly after the flames were brought under control, Israeli police fired into the air to break up a crowd of demonstrating Arab women and children who had come from the burning mosque to the Via Dolorosa, the path Christ took to Calvary.

The commanding officer of the Israeli Army's central command moved in to take control. Defense Minister Moshe Dayan also arrived on the scene.

A curfew was imposed around the mosque compound.

Elsea noted today that more support is coming from individuals than had been expected. Several $100 donations have been received from private citizens within the past three days.

Option on the 50-acre tract belonging to Charles Kreisel expires on Friday — deadline for collecting the $50,000 for land purchase.

A $100,000 grant from the state has been appropriated for the Pickaway County Airport with another $50,000 to follow. The state funds, however, will hinge on Pickaway County's responsibility to provide the land.

Contributions are still being accepted at P. O. Box 1969, or by calling Asa Elsea, or by contacting a member of the Airport Authority.

Connecticut Train Crash Fatal To Five

DARIEN, Conn. (AP) — Five persons, including three train crewmen, were killed in a head-on train collision Wednesday night, Penn. Central Railroad officials said today.

Firemen and railroad workers labored past dawn to remove the last bodies from the wreckage.

Thirty-five persons were treated for injuries, and three were hospitalized.

One of those killed was the engineer of a commuter train heading north from Stamford.

The engineer of the empty southbound train, Edward May, 37, of Watertown, was trapped in the wreckage of the leading, electric-powered car for nearly five hours while rescuers worked with crowbars and torches to free him.

Storms Hit Midcontinent

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Thunderstorms slapped parts of the midcontinent and the South with heavy rain today while western Virginia counted a rising toll of dead from its worst flooding in 33 years.

Occasionally heavy thunderstorms hit scattered areas from the southern Rockies through the Mississippi Valley and into the Southeast.

Nearly 2 inches of rain soaked Muscle Shoals, Ala., before daybreak, and a similar amount poured onto Vichy, in central Missouri. A tornado dipped into Rolla, Mo., south of Vichy, Wednesday night and knocked down power lines and uprooted trees. No injuries were reported.

Heavy rain also fell in east-central Kansas and local flash flooding was forecast.

Clear and sometimes crisp weather dominated most of the northern half of the country. Temperatures fell into the 40s and 50s from the northern Great Lakes into interior New England.

Known Dead Total 38; Many Missing

Camille Remnants Pour Torrents On Mountain Towns

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Ravaged towns in western Virginia's Blue Ridge foothills counted a rising toll of dead today from the state's most lethal floodwaters in 33 years.

By late Wednesday, 38 persons were known to have perished and 32 others were missing in the flash flooding from torrents of rain touched off by the remnants of Hurricane Camille. Larger cities to the east braced for trouble as the James River, rising higher and higher with water from swollen tributaries, passed flood stage.

Two persons drowned in southern West Virginia, where rampaging streams left the tourist-packed region choked with wrecked homes, swamped roads and smashed bridges.

In Virginia, rivers flowing down both the eastern and western sides of the Blue Ridge Mountain chain inundated towns and villages almost before residents could be warned of impending peril.

In the countryside, immense earthslides and waters from normally placid streams tore up and blocked highways.

Towns were isolated, without electricity, telephone service and pure water to drink. Hundreds were homeless.

All the rivers that flooded converge into the James, which cuts across the state to Chesapeake Bay.

At Richmond, the state capital, in the east-central part of the state, the James already was well above flood stage early today, and the Weather Bureau said it would crest at 34 feet at the city wharf by 10 p.m. EDT. That is 25 feet above flood stage and 22 feet above the dock.

City officials put crews to work building sandbag barriers to protect the lower-lying areas, not far from the downtown section.

Property damage in the areas flooded Wednesday was estimated initially at more than $11 million.

Virginia Gov. Mills E. Godwin Jr., state Civil Defense officials, representatives of the State Highway Department, the Federal Small Business Administration and the National Office of Emergency Preparedness planned an aerial survey to size up the damage and the most immediate needs.

In West Virginia, Richwood in Monongahela National Forest and nearby Anjean were designated disaster areas by Gov. Arch A. Moore. He ordered hundreds of National Guardsmen into the flood-torn valleys of the Greenbrier, Gauley and Cherry rivers.

Thirteen of Virginia's known dead and 23 of the missing were in the tiny community of Massies Mill on the Tye River in Nelson County. The even smaller community of Woods Mills, (Continued on Page 2)

County Welfare Reports On Food Stamp Program

Food Stamp Program figures for the month of July have been released by the Pickaway County Welfare office, local administrators for the U.S. Department of Agriculture program. The plan was put into effect in the county in June.

According to Jane Hoover of the Pickaway County Welfare staff, a total of $15,275 worth of stamps were issued in July. Recipients paid $6,413.55 cash for the stamps to increase their buying power by an additional $8,861.45. This involved 411 households, an increase over the number of households that were participating in the commodity program at the time it closed in May.

The purpose of the Food Stamp Program is to help low income families, those living on social security or limited pensions, the unemployed and handicapped or those who are part-time employed to buy more food. Eligible families exchange money for food stamp coupons worth more. The U.S. government pays the difference between the amount the family invests and the total value of the coupon it gets. This increases the buying power of participating families and boosts the county's economy.

It is solely a food program. Coupon cannot be used for the purchase of any taxable items such as alcoholic beverages and tobacco. Import purchases are also excluded with the exception of coffee, tea, bananas and cocoa.

GROCERS throughout the county who participate in the plan acknowledged receiving from "a few" to "many" food stamps since the program went into effect. Several remarked that they expected to see a greater number of stamps used as the program becomes more familiar to eligible users. To date, they noted no appreciable increase in volume business from the use of the coupons.

The welfare staff and clerks of the issuance center at the county treasurer's office feel the transition to the new program has been relatively smooth. Caseworker Jane Hoover reported that "existing obstacles can be overcome." A promotion of understanding of the program will aid operation, she added.

Food stamp issuance centers in Pickaway County are The Ashville Bank, Harrisburg Savings and Banking Co., The First National Bank of New Holland and the Pickaway County Treasurer.

Stocks Hold Trifle Higher

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market remained on slightly higher ground in moderate trading early this afternoon, with brokers reporting investors waiting for the market to assume a solid trend.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 0.47 at 833.09.

Advances led declines by about 200 issues.

"The market paused to consolidate Wednesday," an analyst said, "and apparently a lot of people are on the sidelines waiting to see what it will do now."

They said some investors apparently stayed out of the early action while waiting for Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird to speak. Laird announced new Pentagon spending cuts of $1.5 billion, including a 100,000 man reduction in the armed forces.

"If the market can stay above the 830 level on the Dow," an analyst said, "it probably will advance some more. But if it slips below it might go back and test the 800 level again."

The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon was up .4 at 294.0, with industrials up .2, rails up .3, and utilities up .4.

Paul D. Miller To Retire At Columbia Gas

PAUL D. MILLER

Paul D. Miller, a former Circleville resident, business promotion coordinator for Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc., will retire Sept. 1 after 35 years of service.

Miller joined the gas company as a salesman at Circleville in 1934. He was promoted to district heating supervisor at Zanesville in 1940 and then served as town manager at Coshocton and district sales manager at Zanesville. He was promoted to general dealer sales manager with headquarters at Columbus in 1953.

In 1961, he was named to the newly-created post of business promotion coordinator.

Before joining the gas company, Miller was associated for several years with the Pictorial Review Co. and McCall Publishing Co.

Born at Creston, Miller was graduated from high school there and received a bachelor of arts degree in commerce from Ohio University. He studied law for a year at Ohio State University.

He is a past exalted ruler of the Elks Lodge at Circleville and a member of Columbus Maennerchor, Northwest Kiwanis Club and Presbyterian Church. He is a past president of the Gas Company Employees Credit Union and has served nearly eight years on its Board of Directors.

Miller, 65, and his wife, Ruth, live at 1845 Collingswood Rd. They have a son, James, an attorney at Wilmington, Ohio.

EMERGENCIES

Ted Dennis, 32, of 146 Fairview Ave., sustained welding burns of both eyes at work.

David Ely, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ely, 1117 McGraw Road, lost two upper front teeth in a bicycle accident.

Ronald Stebelton, 36, Route 2, Amanda, injured his left ring finger at work.

Kenneth Short, 17, Route 4, received a contusion of a finger while practicing football.

Vera Leist, 49 McCullough Ave., lacerated her thumb on an electric clipper.

Marcus Minehart, 13, Route 1, Rockbridge, sustained a puncture wound of his left foot when he stepped on a nail.

Larry Pennington, 26, of 463 1/2 Watt St., sustained contusions of his back at work.

Mike Overton, 16, Route 4, fell, causing contusions of his elbow.

Donald Hill, 37, of 915 Circle Drive, lacerated his arm on a lawn mower.

Ernest Crites, 71, Stoutsville, fell, causing contusions of his face, shoulder and knee.

Jack Mills, 35, of 476 E. Franklin St. sustained an acute back sprain at work.

Alvin Perdon, 50, Route 4 fractured his right arm in a fall.

Kenny Fullen, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fullen, Route 3, Mt. Sterling, received burns to his chest, abdomen and face from a car radiator.

Linda Pettry, Route 1, Stoutsville, lacerated a finger in a pulley.

Dennis McMahon, 25, of 319 S. Scioto St., sustained multiple contusions and abrasions in a motorcycle accident.

Treated in the emergency room on Wednesday were 35 patients with 18 for medical purposes, one bicycle and one motorcycle accident and 15 non-vehicle accidents.

Mrs. Roliff Wolford, executive secretary of the local chapter, has made every attempt to establish communications in the affected area.

At the present time, she has made contact with Red Cross Disaster workers in Jackson, Miss., located 200 miles from the disaster area. This was difficult and accomplished only with the aid of a telephone operator who insisted the call be sent through since it was a Red Cross emergency. She was told that disaster casualties from the Pass Christian, Miss., area had been evacuated to Jackson.

Mrs. Wolford assures concerned area residents that she will accept requests for health and welfare report, although she can promise nothing in the way of information because of poor communications from the stricken area. Red Cross Headquarters are located at 167 Watt St. The phone number is 474-5736.

New Orleans Chapter of American Red Cross, through Western Union facilities, has attempted to keep the rest of the country advised with health and welfare reports. Mrs. Wolford also noted that a New Orleans radio station has a 24-hour long "Operation Locate" which lists persons who have reported in as safe. Locally, this station has excellent reception at nighttime.

To aid in the disaster, all Red Cross Chapters throughout the nation will conduct a fund campaign. Money will be accepted to be transmitted immediately to National Headquarters. No requests for food or clothing will be made because of cost of shipment and lack of warehousing. Funds received will be used by Red Cross to place orders to stores for food and clothing as needed.

Anyone wishing to contribute funds for disaster aid may do so locally at the chapter house.

Local Farmer To Be Guest At State Fair

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Taylor of New Holland, will be honored at a farm-city luncheon in the Youth Center at the Ohio State Fair on Saturday.

The Taylors, together with four other outstanding farm couples and five urban couples will attend the luncheon.

The luncheon has been arranged as part of the sixth annual observance of farm-city day at the fair for the purpose of promoting better urban-rural understanding. Sponsors include the State Farm-City Committee, the Ohio Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Railroad Community Service Committee of Columbus and the Ohio State Exposition Center.

Farm-city guests will be welcomed by Governor James A. Rhodes; Gary Wayland of Berea, national director of civic recognition for the Ohio Jaycees, and Lester M. Newell, chairman of the Railroad Community Service Committee of the Columbus Area.

The guest speaker at the luncheon will be Don F. Rehl, manager of market development-grain for Penn Central in Philadelphia. Mr. Rehl is a former resident of Columbus and Cleveland.

Known Dead

At Glasgow, Va., where the Maury River and the James join, nine persons were missing.

Elsewhere, bodies were found floating in rivers, inside wrecked buildings and in automobiles washed off highways into deeply flooded fields.

In Buena Vista 3,000 of its 6,500 residents were evacuated from their homes.

Downtown Waynesboro's eastern section lay under eight feet of water from the South River.

In Louisa County, an earthen dam at a 500-acre, man-made lake gave way and a 20-foot wall of water surged across farmland to the North Anna River, drowning an estimated 400 head of cattle.

Panther Leader Back In Custody

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Black Panther leader Bobby Seale posted $25,000 bail on a fugitive charge Wednesday, but before he got out of the federal marshal's custody he was handcuffed by two city police inspectors with a murder warrant from Connecticut.

The 32-year-old Panther co-founder and national chairman spent his second night in San Francisco County jail and was scheduled for a Municipal Court hearing today on legality of the Connecticut warrant.

The Erie County judge will handle domestic relations matters.

Social Security Answers

EDITOR'S NOTE — The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare in an attempt to clear up problems about social security, will periodically have a question-answer column in The Herald.

A. — I understand that a disabled widow may be able to get monthly benefits if she's over 50 and if her deceased husband had worked long enough under social security, and if her disability started within seven years after her husband's death. My question is: What's the purpose of the seven-year limitation?

A. — It's assumed that if a woman is well and able to work, she should be able to establish her own work record within seven years.

Q. — Medicare pays for the care of a patient in the hospital that he chooses. Has this resulted in some hospitals being utilized more than others?

A. — No, but this has happened? There has been a movement away from the municipal or charity hospital, to the voluntary private hospital where people who previously couldn't afford to pay, now go.

Q. — When should I file my retirement request with your office and should I do it in person or by some other method?

A. — We like people to file three months before their planned retirement to insure prompt processing and handling of their claim. We prefer that claims be filed in person, but if for some reason this is inconvenient for you, we may be able to complete the application over the phone and mail it to you for your signature. You then can return the application with the required documents.

Q. — I don't have a birth certificate. What kind of evidence do I need to prove how old I am?

A. — When a person's birth is not recorded, we suggest some of the following items as evidence of age: Baptismal Certificate, school records, census records, marriage records, insurance policies or other documents that show your age or date of birth. If you call our office, we may be able to save you time and assist you by providing applications for documents, form letters or advice on which documents to get. Our phone number is 775-4950.

Paul D. Miller To Retire At Columbia Gas

PAUL D. MILLER

Paul D. Miller, a former Circleville resident, business promotion coordinator for Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc., will retire Sept. 1 after 35 years of service.

Miller joined the gas company as a salesman at Circleville in 1934. He was promoted to district heating supervisor at Zanesville in 1940 and then served as town manager at Coshocton and district sales manager at Zanesville. He was promoted to general dealer sales manager with headquarters at Columbus in 1953.

In 1961, he was named to the newly-created post of business promotion coordinator.

Before joining the gas company, Miller was associated for several years with the Pictorial Review Co. and McCall Publishing Co.

Born at Creston, Miller was graduated from high school there and received a bachelor of arts degree in commerce from Ohio University. He studied law for a year at Ohio State University.

He is a past exalted ruler of the Elks Lodge at Circleville and a member of Columbus Maennerchor, Northwest Kiwanis Club and Presbyterian Church. He is a past president of the Gas Company Employees Credit Union and has served nearly eight years on its Board of Directors.

Miller, 65, and his wife, Ruth, live at 1845 Collingswood Rd. They have a son, James, an attorney at Wilmington, Ohio.

EVEN county commissioners have birthdays one today!

DID you have a blanket handy last night? ... Or did you spend a restless night, too sleepy to get some extra covers and too cold to sleep?

The thermometer dropped to a near-record low of 48 degrees during the night — only slightly higher than the all-time low August reading in Roundtown ... On Aug. 28, 1965 the mercury iced in at 38 degrees.

OPENING services for the 51st annual Mt. of Praise Camp Meeting are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Friday at the campgrounds on E. Ohio St.

Hundreds of visitors to the Church of Christ in Christian Union camp meeting began arriving in Circleville today.

Mrs. Roliff Wolford, executive secretary of the local chapter, has made every attempt to establish communications in the affected area.

At the present time, she has made contact with Red Cross Disaster workers in Jackson, Miss., located 200 miles from the disaster area. This was difficult and accomplished only with the aid of a telephone operator who insisted the call be sent through since it was a Red Cross emergency. She was told that disaster casualties from the Pass Christian, Miss., area had been evacuated to Jackson.

Mrs. Wolford assures concerned area residents that she will accept reports for health and welfare report, although she can promise nothing in the way of information because of poor communications from the stricken area. Red Cross Headquarters are located at 167 Watt St. The phone number is 474-5736.

New Orleans Chapter of American Red Cross, through Western Union facilities, has attempted to keep the rest of the country advised with health and welfare reports. Mrs. Wolford also noted that a New Orleans radio station has a 24-hour long "Operation Locate" which lists persons who have reported in as safe. Locally, this station has excellent reception at nighttime.

To aid in the disaster, all Red Cross Chapters throughout the nation will conduct a fund campaign. Money will be accepted to be transmitted immediately to National Headquarters. No requests for food or clothing will be made because of cost of shipment and lack of warehousing. Funds received will be used by Red Cross to place orders to stores for food and clothing as needed.

Anyone wishing to contribute funds for disaster aid may do so locally at the chapter house.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Cats Pose No Danger To Kids

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for two years and am expecting my first baby in about a month. We are both excited about it as this was a planned baby. My mother-in-law who lives out of the city came to visit us last week, and when she saw that I had a cat she said, "Of course when the baby comes you will get rid of the cat?"

I told her "Fluffy" had been with us since she was a kitten and I had no intentions of getting rid of her. Then she went into a big long speech about how cats give babies ringworm, and they have also been known to jump into the crib and suck the breath from a baby, suffocating it.

Can you tell me if she is right? If there is any danger in having a cat in my house, I will give Fluffy away.

EXPECTING: Your mother-in-law is repeating an old wives' tale which has been circulating for years, but experts on cats tell me there is not a word of truth in it. Being affectionate creatures, they will "snuggle" close to a baby, so it's best to be sure the cat can't get into the baby's crib, but cats are scrupulously clean, and do not carry ringworm.

DEAR ABBY: I am 23, and have been dating a divorcee for the past two years. We are very much in love. She is 27, but looks much younger. She has a 2-year-old child, and Abby, I couldn't love that little girl more if she were my own flesh and blood.

My problem is my mother. She doesn't approve. She hasn't given this girl a chance, she just doesn't like her. She says she has three strikes against her. One, she's a divorcee, two, she has a child and three, she's older than I am.

I love my mother and don't want to hurt her, so what do you think I should do? Marry this girl without my mother's blessings and hope my mother accepts her later on? Or give up this girl and try to find a girl my mother approves of?

DEBATING: If your mother calls the above-mentioned set of circumstances "strikes," she wouldn't make a very fair umpire. I can't tell you whether or not to marry this woman, but I can tell you that if you are "debating" you're not ready to get married yet.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the wife who wanted to hear from single girls who are having "back alley intimacies" with married men.

How long has it been since you took the trouble to spend one fun-filled hour with your husband? I am not speaking of "physical fun." I mean the fun of sharing a silly joke, dancing around the dining room table, or just relaxing with conversation and maybe a glass of beer. How long has it been since you told your husband you loved him? And appreciated him? And tried to lift his spirits and take his mind off his everyday troubles?

This is what goes on between married men and their "back alley" girl friends. I should know.

BEEN THERE: CONFIDENTIAL TO JESS: Reforms always come from below. No man with four aces ever asks for a new deal.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Cats Pose No Danger To Kids

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for two years and am expecting my first baby in about a month. We are both excited about it as this was a planned baby. My mother-in-law who lives out of the city came to visit us last week, and when she saw that I had a cat she said, "Of course when the baby comes you will get rid of the cat?"

I told her "Fluffy" had been with us since she was a kitten and I had no intentions of getting rid of her. Then she went into a big long speech about how cats give babies ringworm, and they have also been known to jump into the crib and suck the breath from a baby, suffocating it.

Can you tell me if she is right? If there is any danger in having a cat in my house, I will give Fluffy away.

EXPECTING: DEAR EXPECTING: Your mother-in-law is repeating an old wives' tale which has been circulating for years, but experts on cats tell me there is not a word of truth in it. Being affectionate creatures, they will "snuggle" close to a baby, so it's best to be sure the cat can't get into the baby's crib, but cats are scrupulously clean, and do not carry ringworm.

DEAR ABBY: I am 23, and have been dating a divorcee for the past two years. We are very much in love. She is 27, but looks much younger. She has a 2-year-old child, and Abby, I couldn't love that little girl

Falls Off Cliff, Demands Her Tea

LLITHFAEN, Wales (AP) — Elizabeth Williams, who is 78, fell 500 feet down a cliff and then insisted that she be taken home for a cup of tea.

"She is the toughest and luckiest old dear I have ever met," said Lt. Alan Mawby, navigator of the Royal Air Force helicopter which found her Tuesday after a 20-hour search.

"She didn't seem to have any injuries apart from cuts and bruises."

Despite Mrs. Williams' hankering for tea in her own parlor, she was taken to a hospital for observation.

more if she were my own flesh and blood.

My problem is my mother. She doesn't approve. She hasn't given this girl a chance, she just doesn't like her. She says she has three strikes against her. One, she's a divorcee, two, she has a child and three, she's older than I am.

I love my mother and don't want to hurt her, so what do you think I should do? Marry this girl without my mother's blessings and hope my mother accepts her later on? Or give up this girl and try to find a girl my mother approves of?

DEBATING: DEAR DEBATING: If your mother calls the above-mentioned set of circumstances "strikes," she wouldn't make a very fair umpire. I can't tell you whether or not to marry this woman, but I can tell you that if you are "debating" you're not ready to get married yet.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the wife who wanted to hear from single girls who are having "back alley intimacies" with married men.

How long has it been since you took the trouble to spend one fun-filled hour with your husband? I am not speaking of "physical fun." I mean the fun of sharing a silly joke, dancing around the dining room table, or just relaxing with conversation and maybe a glass of beer. How long has it been since you told your husband you loved him? And appreciated him? And tried to lift his spirits and take his mind off his everyday troubles?

This is what goes on between married men and their "back alley" girl friends. I should know.

BEEN THERE: CONFIDENTIAL TO JESS: Reforms always come from below. No man with four aces ever asks for a new deal.

A Theory At Work

The specter of Thomas Malthus continues to haunt the Eastern world.

It was Malthus who theorized back in the late 18th century that population tends to grow in a geometric progression while the means of sustenance tends to grow only in an arithmetic progression.

The import of his theory is that population eventually outgrows the food supply. When it does, natural checks such as famine, disease, and the like, must operate to bring population back into line.

The shade of Malthus has been laid to rest in the Western world. Not so in the Far East. Take Red China, for example.

More people are being born, and the death rate is being pushed down. But the fear of crop failures and famine is ever present. Russia, too, has had many crop failures.

When famine, always in the offing, takes over, Red China must divert its attention from its ambitious goal of becoming a first class world menace to the more basic problem of feeding its people. Russia has a record of pulling in its horns in the international field when it has lean years at home.

The pressure of population in these two countries is not likely to permit the development of surpluses. If the specter of Malthus has bought the West time, it is the task of Western officials to use that time to best advantage.

Spiral Continues

The price of copper has reached a new high of nearly 50 cents a pound, while steel prices continue to advance. Economists attach more significance to these price advances than to a continuing upsurge in doctors' fees and costs of other services.

When costs of raw materials skyrocket, the consumer is forced to pay more for manufactured products, regardless of how high they were priced previously.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Economists of the Nixon administration are using their own brand of jawbone tactics in trying to destroy with words and forecasts an inflationary psychology that remains entrenched.

The jawbone is most readily identified with President Lyndon B. Johnson, who used it against price increases he felt were unwarranted. The beauty of the tactic was that the threat of action, rather than action itself, got the job done.

Now, a bit agitated by the persistence of inflation despite a relentless campaign against it, and fearful that business and consumers might assume that the slowdown is never coming, the jawbone is again in use.

An address this week by Paul McCracken, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors, provides a good example.

Speaking to an audience at the University of Wisconsin, McCracken laid it on the line. The administration's restraining policies, he said, "will lead to weaker sales, lower production schedules, reduced employment and diminished profits."

Seldom has an administration's economic intentions been stated more clearly. And it is clear also that McCracken felt that what he could not demonstrate with figures he could, perhaps, with words.

The fact is that the anti-inflation policy—a slowdown in the rise in government spending, restricting the money supply and raising taxes—has not yet punctured the inflation balloon.

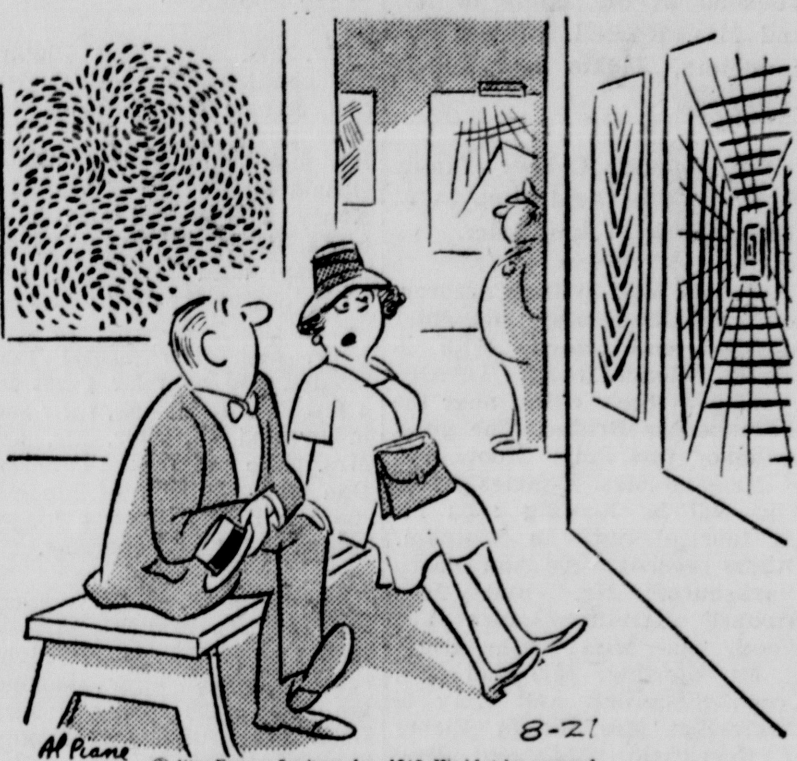

McCracken conceded as much. The effects of basic economic policy do not show up in the economy, he said, for six to 12 months, and he indicated that in the present situation the latter part of the range would be reached.

The reason for the long lag, the chief economist indicated, is the inflationary psychology that grips most areas of the economy. Consumers and businessmen simply do not believe that inflation will be licked.

Acting on this assumption, businessmen continue to make expansion plans, figuring that they must be prepared for ever bigger markets and rationalizing their moves by saying that they must spend now because prices will be higher tomorrow. Similarly, instead of putting money away for a rainy day—even for the possible loss of a job—consumers continue to spend heavily, confident of their future earning power.

With this situation facing it, and without statistical evidence to prove that its policies are working, the administration is forced to rely on words—to create an atmosphere of uncertainty.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A NOVICE FISHERMAN had beginner's luck off Walker's Cay in the Bahamas and brought in a fine mess of groupers and red snappers. "What do I do now?" he asked the boat captain. "Take 'em home and get your wife to clean them," suggested the captain. The beginner didn't look too happy when he turned up the following Sunday. "I got my wife to clean those fish like you told me," he reported to the captain, "but I guess she used the wrong kind of soap."

David Nichol informs us that under British law, you may refuse to pay a repairman's bill if he fails to appear at the time stipulated. For example, a mere promise to service a TV set at a given time is a definite contract—and if the repairman is late, the consumer may deduct a reasonable sum for his own lost time or any inconvenience suffered.

Mr. Nichol neglects to tell us how you get said repairman back the next time the TV set conks out on you!

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Our son, 19, confessed that he tried LSD four times. Since he told us that we think he has been behaving oddly and we worried that the drug may have caused permanent harm. Is there any way to find out if it has harmed him? As I write this letter I hardly believe that I am speaking about my own son.

Mr. Y. D., Illinois
Dear Mr. D.: As you know, LSD stands for lysergic acid, a chemical referred to as a mind-expanding drug. Reactions to it vary to such a degree that it is impossible to say beforehand what it will do to any one person.

All sensations are said to become intensified. Colors may be more brilliant and sound may be heightened in intensity. Hallucinations and strange delusions frequently occur and may be one of the reasons why the drug intrigues those who are ignorant of its dangers. LSD is indeed potential dynamite. Severe depression, anxiety and uncontrolled panic may follow one or more experiences.

These are not happy answers to your problem. But they must be realistically known by you and by the parents of other children who must concentrate their efforts on preventing youngsters from falling into the immature "trap of trips."

The chances are that your son has not been permanently affected by this reckless, immature drug taking. A doctor and a psychiatrist should thoroughly test him with the many psychological studies that are available to learn if harm was done, but more especially to learn the reasons why he took LSD to begin with.

I wonder whether you can really honestly ask yourself if your son's odd behavior now is any different than it was before. The chances are great that you may have overlooked many of the symptoms of rebelliousness and not really had your hand on the true pulse of his activity. As you look back on the past few months, has he been eating well, sleeping well and been responsible to his family and to his school?

Were you in complete control of his outside activities or aware of the character of his friends?

This seems rather harsh because you may believe that I am placing the burden of your son's irresponsibility on you. I do not mean to do this but rather direct myself to other parents in the hope that they may be spared the anguish you now are suffering. When once you find, as you probably will, that your son is not suffering from any permanent damage, you must follow the instructions of the psychiatrist and attempt to reestablish his own values so that he will no longer be tempted into taking drugs.

LSD and marijuana are linked together because so many youngsters play the "cool" game and take these drugs together. This is a dangerous era unless we are constantly aware of the temptations and traps laid for youngsters.

TODAY In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Thursday, Aug. 21, the 233rd day of 1969. There are 132 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1944, representatives of the United States, Britain, Russia and China met at Dumbarton Oaks in Washington to lay the groundwork for an international peace organization.

On this date: In 1858, the famous Lincoln-Douglas debates began between Lincoln and Stephen Douglas.

In 1860, a force under the Italian patriot Giuseppe Garibaldi captured Reggio, Italy.

In 1918, the second battle of the Somme River began in France in World War I.

In 1940, the Communist revolutionary, Leon Trotsky, died of wounds inflicted by an assassin in Mexico City.

In 1945, President Harry S. Truman halted lend-lease operations.

In 1951, the United States ordered construction of the first atomic submarine.

Ten years ago — The Chinese Communists reported more than 700 killed in a typhoon.

Five years ago: Bolivia broke diplomatic and commercial relations with Cuba.

One year ago: President Lyndon B. Johnson denounced the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia and appealed to the Soviet to withdraw their troops.

Black-White Relations

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The University of Connecticut plans an "Orientation Week" for new students in early September. As part of the program, one evening will be devoted to a discussion of black-white relations, with participation by faculty and administrators. The summer list of "background reading" suggested for the participants in the "black-white" dialogue consists of four books, "Soul on Ice," by Eldridge Cleaver, "The Other America," by Michael Harrington, "The Rhetoric of Black Power," by Robert L. Scott and Wayne Brockriede and "The Autobiography of Malcolm X."

I have nothing against the idea of beginning with the four titles that are described as a "proper sampling," but if such books define the area of "relevance" in black-white relations we are obviously in for a pretty bleak future. Cleaver is currently "on the lam" in Africa, a fugitive from American court proceedings; Michael Harrington is an avowed socialist; Malcolm X was a Black Muslim. It could be that Cleaver has been badly victimized by life and the U.S. Establishment and that Harrington's statistical picture of poverty is true within the context of a submerged tenth. Moreover, Malcolm X's leadership had its positive side: his inheritors and followers have most praiseworthy attitudes when it comes to keeping ghetto adolescents out of the hands of the dope-pushers. But "the rhetoric of black power," though it is overpowering, is not the majority rhetoric of the Negro. It is only a very small part of the subject of black-white relations.

The trouble with relying on books for anything these days is that publishing, as it is practiced in New York City, is predominantly a left-wing business. But there are books in the black-white relations field that do not point the way to a militant black separatism, and there is journalism that marks Mickey Harrington's doleful picture of the "other America" as an overwrought document.

If the University of Connecticut wishes to balance its "suggested reading" list (it still has time for it before school opens), why not add George Schuyler's "Black and Conservative" as a fifth starter? Or, if that seems too "right wing" for the Liberal Land of Academia, there is an "in-between" book, "Ghetto Crisis: Riots or Reconciliation?", written by two white sociologists, Henry Etzkowitz and Gerald Schaflander, who started what they describe as "an integrated, self-supporting day-care center for the children of unwed and welfare mothers" in the Bedford-Stuyvesant ghetto of New York City. The Etzkowitz-Schaflander team considers "black power" an "overrated concept used only by a minority of the young, alienated 'jitterbugs' and a handful of power-seeking militants. Seldom do adults use it. What they want is 'green power'..."

To discover the extent to which "green power" is growing among American blacks one has to go to journalistic record, not to what can be found in hardcover books or even in paperback. One doesn't have to read Eldridge Cleaver or Malcolm X or even Michael Harrington, that the percentage of black families below the $3,000-a-year-income level has been cut in half since 1968. The Negro market has become a big market, as advertisers in the magazine "Ebony" have discovered. One doesn't have to be Pollyannish about things to take it as a hopeful sign that the "black bourgeoisie" is growing faster than the white bourgeoisie. I have seen figures that purport to prove that black family advances into the $15,000-and-up brackets are outpacing comparable white advances by a three-to-one margin percentage-wise. This figure, of course, is somewhat deceptive, for the whites in America outnumber the blacks by a ten-to-one margin.

It would be tough for the University of Connecticut to assemble the available "black-white" journalistic output in time for its September "Orientation Week." But books are another matter. It may be relevant to note that a Black Academy of Arts and Letters was established some six months ago. I don't find Eldridge Cleaver on its list of founding members.

Dear Sir:

We keep hearing that today's youth feel defeated because they aren't permitted to do "their own thing." I would never attempt to speak for today's youth, but I do feel that some of the things we expect of our youth produce frustrations because we do not allow them opportunity for creative self-expression. We set a goal in high school of getting into college and forget that a part of that goal should be preparation for mature adulthood.

We pressure them to take science and math so they can get into college and insist that they participate and succeed in athletics to inflate our own ego. Doing their own thing might be playing an instrument in the high school band, but we insist that will take too much time from study of other subjects and we tend to look on art courses as a sheer waste of time.

The rest of the world looks down on us because we have no real culture. At the rate our school guidance counselors and some of our other adults are ignoring it, in another generation, our only culture may again be the tom-tom and cave drawings featuring men.

However, this need not be. Our county schools offer excellent programs in both music and art. For those who take advantage of them, there is an excellent opportunity for full maturity and cultural development or "doing your own thing." Art and music offer a lifelong opportunity for self-expression and enjoyment as well as full maturity as an adult.

For those who participate in music and art in high school, many doors are opened in college, too. I also know of one young man from Pickaway County, perhaps there are others, who is using his artistic talent in the army in Viet Nam. I have no figures to back it up, but I feel sure that as many Pickaway County students have made the "first team" in the college music organizations as have gotten off the bench in college athletic programs.

Why must we adults be oriented to spectator sports only? Why don't we have chamber music groups and really work at good music in our church choirs, in barbershop quartets and other vocal groups? Great books, are or music discussion groups could be interesting or we could work with the already established art or dramatic clubs. Let's help ourselves and our children to cultural maturity by "doing our own thing" in music and art in Pickaway County.

A Theory At Work

The specter of Thomas Malthus continues to haunt the Eastern world. It was Malthus who theorized back in the late 18th century that population tends to grow in a geometric progression while the means of sustenance tends to grow only in an arithmetic progression.

The import of his theory is that population eventually outgrows the food supply. When it does, natural checks such as famine, disease, and the like, must operate to bring population back into line.

The shade of Malthus has been laid to rest in the Western world. Not so in the Far East. Take Red China, for example.

More people are being born, and the death rate is being pushed down. But the fear of crop failures and famine is ever present. Russia, too, has had many crop failures.

When famine, always in the offing, takes over, Red China must divert its attention from its ambitious goal of becoming a first class world menace to the more basic problem of feeding its people. Russia has a record of pulling in its horns in the international field when it has lean years at home.

The pressure of population in these two countries is not likely to permit the development of surpluses. If the specter of Malthus has bought the West time, it is the task of Western officials to use that time to best advantage.

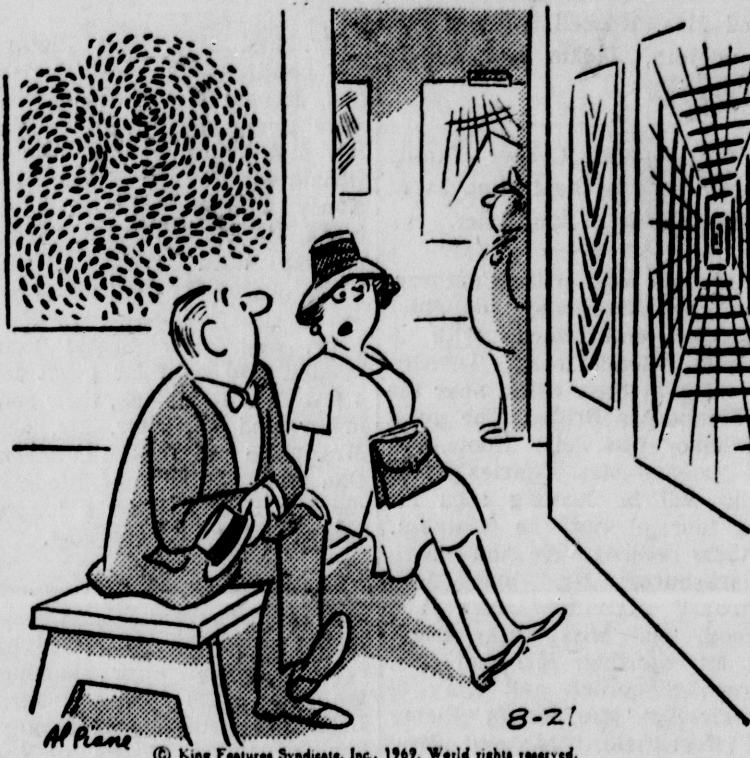

Spiral Continues

The price of copper has reached a new high of nearly 50 cents a pound, while steel prices continue to advance. Economists attach more significance to these price advances than to a continuing upsurge in doctors' fees and costs of other services.

When costs of raw materials skyrocket, the consumer is forced to pay more for manufactured products, regardless of how high they were priced previously.

A NOVICE FISHERMAN had beginner's luck off Walker's Cay in the Bahamas and brought in a fine mess of groupers and red snappers. "What do I do now?" he asked the boat captain. "Take 'em home and get your wife to clean them," suggested the captain. The beginner didn't look too happy when he turned up the following Sunday. "I got my wife to clean those fish like you told me," he reported to the captain, "but I guess she used the wrong kind of soap."

For example, a mere promise to service a TV set at a given time is a definite contract—and if the repairman is late, the consumer may deduct a reasonable sum for his own lost time or any inconvenience suffered.

Mr. Nichol neglects to tell us how you get said repairman back the next time the TV set conks out on you!

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Our son, 19, confessed that he tried LSD four times. Since he told us that we think he has been behaving oddly and we are worried that the drug may have caused permanent harm. Is there any way to find out if it has harmed him? As I write this letter I hardly believe that I am speaking about my own son.

Mr. Y. D., Illinois: Dear Mr. D.: As you know, LSD stands for lysergic acid, a chemical referred to as a mind-expanding drug. Reactions to it vary to such a degree that it is impossible to say beforehand what it will do to any one person.

All sensations are said to become intensified. Colors may be more brilliant and sound may be heightened in intensity. Hallucinations and strange delusions frequently occur and may be one of the reasons why the drug intrigues those who are ignorant of its dangers.

LSD is indeed potential dynamite. Severe depression, anxiety and uncontrolled panic may follow one or more experiences.

These are not happy answers to your problem. But they must be realistically known by you and by the parents of other children who must concentrate their efforts on preventing youngsters from falling into the immature "trap of trips."

The chances are that your son has not been permanently affected by this reckless, immature drug taking. A doctor and a psychiatrist should thoroughly test him with the many psychological studies that are available to learn if harm was done, but more especially to learn the reasons why he took LSD to begin with.

I wonder whether you can really honestly ask yourself if your son's odd behavior now is any different than it was before. The chances are great that you may have overlooked many of the symptoms of rebelliousness and not really had your hand on the true pulse of his activity. As you look back on the past few months, has he been eating well, sleeping well and been responsible to his family and to his school?

Were you in complete control of his outside activities or aware of the character of his friends?

This seems rather harsh because you may believe that I am placing the burden of your son's irresponsibility on you. I do not mean to do this but rather direct myself to other parents in the hope that they may be spared the anguish you

Black-White Relations

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The University of Connecticut plans an "Orientation Week" for new students in early September. As part of the program, one evening will be devoted to a discussion of black-white relations, with participation by faculty and administrators. The summer list of "background reading" suggested for the participants in the "black-white" dialogue consists of four books, "Soul on Ice," by Eldridge Cleaver, "The Other America," by Michael Harrington, "The Rhetoric of Black Power," by Robert L. Scott and Wayne Brockriede and "The Autobiography of Malcolm X."

I have nothing against the idea of beginning with the four titles that are described as a "proper sampling," but if such books define the area of "relevance" in black-white relations we are obviously in for a pretty bleak future. Cleaver is currently "on the lam" in Africa, a fugitive from American court proceedings; Michael Harrington is an avowed socialist; Malcolm X was a Black Muslim. It could be that Cleaver has been badly victimized by life and the U.S. Establishment and that Harrington's statistical picture of poverty is true within the context of a submerged tenth. Moreover, Malcolm X's leadership had its positive side: his inheritors and followers have most praiseworthy attitudes when it comes to keeping ghetto adolescents out of the hands of the dope-pushers. But "the rhetoric of black power," though it is overpowering, is not the majority rhetoric of the Negro. It is only a very small part of the subject of black-white relations.

The trouble with relying on books for anything these days is that publishing, as it is practiced in New York City, is predominantly a left-wing business. But there are books in the black-white relations field that do not point the way to a militant black separatism, and there is journalism that marks Mickey Harrington's doleful picture of the "other America" as an overwrought document.

If the University of Connecticut wishes to balance its "suggested reading" list (it still has time for it before school opens), why not add George Schuyler's "Black and Conservative" as a fifth starter? Or, if that seems too "right wing" for the Liberal Land of Academia, there is an "in-between" book, "Ghetto Crisis: Riots or Reconciliation?", written by two white sociologists, Henry Etzkowitz and Gerald Schaflander, who started what they describe as "an integrated, self-supporting day-care center for the children of unwed and Welfare mothers" in the Bedford-Stuyvesant ghetto of New York City. The Etzkowitz-Schaflander team considers "black power" an "overrated concept used only by a minority of the young, alienated 'jitters' and a handful of power-seeking militants. Seldom do adults use it. What they want is 'green power' . . ."

To discover the extent to which "green power" is growing among American blacks one has to go to journalistic record, not to what can be found in hardcover books or even in paperback. One doesn't have to read Eldridge Cleaver or Malcolm X or even Michael Harrington, that the percentage of black families below the $3,000-a-year-income level has been cut in half since 1963. The Negro market has become a big market, as advertisers in the magazine "Ebony" have discovered. One doesn't have to be Pollyannish about things to take it as a hopeful sign that the "black bourgeoisie" is growing faster than the white bourgeoisie. I have seen figures that purport to prove that black family advances into the $15,000-and-up brackets are outpacing comparable white advances by a three-to-one margin percentage-wise. This figure, of course, is somewhat deceptive, for the whites in America outnumber the blacks by a ten-to-one margin.

It would be tough for the University of Connecticut to assemble the available "black-white" journalistic output in time for its September "Orientation Week." But books are another matter. It may be relevant to note that a Black Academy of Arts and Letters was established some six months ago. I don't find Eldridge Cleaver on its list of founding members.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Economists of the Nixon administration are using their own brand of jawbone tactics in trying to destroy with words and forecasts an inflationary psychology that remains entrenched.

The jawbone is most readily identified with President Lyndon B. Johnson, who used it against price increases he felt were unwarranted. The beauty of the tactic was that the threat of action, rather than action itself, got the job done.

Now, a bit agitated by the persistence of inflation despite a relentless campaign against it, and fearful that business and consumers might assume that the slowdown is never coming, the jawbone is again in use.

An address this week by Paul McCracken, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, provides a good example.

Speaking to an audience at the University of Wisconsin, McCracken laid it on the line. The administration's restraining policies, he said, "will lead to weaker sales, lower production schedules, reduced employment and diminished profits."

Seldom has an administration's economic intentions been stated more clearly. And it is clear also that McCracken felt that what he could not demonstrate with figures he could, perhaps, with words.

The fact is that the anti-inflation policy—a slowdown in the rise in government spending, restricting the money supply and raising taxes—has not yet punctured the inflation balloon.

McCracken conceded as much. The effects of basic economic policy do not show up in the economy, he said, for six to 12 months, and he indicated that in the present situation the latter part of the range would be reached.

The reason for the long lag, the chief economist indicated, is the inflationary psychology that grips most areas of the economy. Consumers and businessmen simply do not believe that inflation will be licked.

Acting on this assumption, businessmen continue to make expansion plans, figuring that they must be prepared for ever bigger markets and rationalizing their moves by saying that they must spend now because prices will be higher tomorrow.

Similarly, instead of putting money away for a rainy day—even for the possible loss of a job—consumers continue to spend heavily, confident of their future earning power.

With this situation facing it, and without statistical evidence to prove that its policies are working, the administration is forced to rely on words—to create an atmosphere of uncertainty.

According To Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — "I became a producer by accident," remarked Stanley Kramer, whose work has been nominated 97 times for an Academy Award but never won an Oscar.

"After the second World War, I met a man who had some money."

The remark is typical of the wry realism of Kramer, who started his career as a backlot carpenter and who for nearly a quarter of a century has been one of the most controversial figures in an industry whose first motto is, "Don't make waves."

Kramer, however, has been rolling the waters since 1946, when he made "Home of the Brave." Hollywood's first important film about anti-Negro prejudice.

Although his latest film, "The Secret of Santa Vittoria," is a comedy drama, the producer has preferred to make pictures dealing with the social and individual problems of mankind in a world racked by fear, greed, selfishness and injustice.

Among them have been "The Defiant Ones," "High Noon," "Inherit the Wind," "Death of a Salesman," "The Caine Mutiny," "On the Beach," and "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner."

At 55, white-haired but trimly built as a boxer, Kramer is an noyed at the implication of some critics that he is beginning to pull his punches and has gone soft.

"Sure, my attitudes have changed a lot," he said. "They damn well better change, because the world has changed a lot in the last 25 years."

"I feel more insecure about some things."

"Then I was part of the literature of pre-revolution, and now the revolution is here and I don't quite know where I belong."

"Everything after a time gets outdated. But you must keep asking yourself what you really believe."

Life, from where I sit, is a search for truth. The danger is that you find only part of the truth when you're looking for the whole truth. And what greater lies have been built than those built on part of the truth?

"I don't feel my pictures have reached all the truth, but at the time I thought they did as truly as I could manage."

"Our world today is a better world than 25 years ago because it's more truthful—but it isn't any easier to live in."

Inhabitants of the New Forest in medieval England were forbidden to keep hunting dogs. But poachers trained pigs to point and retrieve snipe, partridges, rabbits, and other game. Trained hogs with sensitive noses still sniff out the delicious underground fungi called truffles in southern France.

TODAY In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, Aug. 21, the 233rd day of 1969. There are 132 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1944, representatives of the United States, Britain, Russia and China met at Dumbarton Oaks in Washington to lay the groundwork for an international peace organization.

On this date:

In 1858, the famous Lincoln-Douglas debates began between Lincoln and Stephen Douglas.

In 1860, a force under the Italian patriot Giuseppe Garibaldi captured Reggio, Italy.

In 1918, the second battle of the Somme River began in France in World War I.

In 1940, the Communist revolutionary, Leon Trotsky, died of wounds inflicted by an assassin in Mexico City.

In 1945, President Harry S. Truman halted lend-lease operations.

In 1951, the United States ordered construction of the first atomic submarine.

Ten years ago — The Chinese Communists reported more than 700 killed in a typhoon.

Five years ago: Bolivia broke diplomatic and commercial relations with Cuba.

One year ago: President Lyndon B. Johnson denounced the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia and appealed to the Soviet to withdraw their troops.

Lumberjack? Ohio Fair Has Your Contest

One of the new features being added to the Ohio State Fair this year is a "Woodsmen Show", it was announced Wednesday by Fred E. Morr, Director of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources.

The event will consist of loggers from across the United States and Canada competing in three categories: chopping, cross-cut (two-man), and chain saw (unlimited). A "Logging Champ" trophy will be awarded to the overall winner Aug. 31.

The competition will be held at 3 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 23; Sunday, Aug. 24; Saturday, Aug. 30 and Sunday, Aug. 31 at the Natural Resources area on the Fairgrounds.

Registration will be held at 2 p.m. each day prior to the competition at the east end of the lake, located within the Natural Resources area.

The contest is open to everyone. Anyone desirous of competing, may obtain additional information by contacting the Ohio Department of Natural Resources.

"REVOLUTION" — Holding a news conference in Stormont, Northern Ireland, Premier James Chichester-Clark brands the violence between Catholics and Protestants a "revolution" triggered by supporters of the Irish Republic to the south "and other sinister elements."

Why A Kennedy Inquest? It's To 'Clear The Air'

By PETER BREWER
Associated Press Writer
EDGARTOWN, Mass. (AP) — The inquest that opens on Sept. 3 into the death of Mary Jo Kopechne is a long-established way in Massachusetts law to determine the legal cause of death, as distinct from the medical cause.

What can the inquest hope to accomplish?

In the words of one former prosecutor, "An inquest ... is used to clear the air and close the books publicly on a case about which questions have arisen."

Miss Kopechne, 28, a Washington, D.C. secretary, was killed July 18 when a car driven by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts went off a bridge into a pond on Chappaquiddick Island. The accident went unreported for nine hours.

Dist. Atty. Edmund Dinis sought and obtained the court order for the inquest to determine.

That Dirty Shirt May Cover Badge

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The hippie with the scraggy beard and the dirty jeans asking where he can buy a fix may not be as freaked as he appears.

He could be one of the drug investigators on the staff of Atty. Gen. Paul W. Brown who for the past several months has been probing the drug problem in Ohio.

Brown's report will be ready for Gov. James A. Rhodes in two weeks. He said it showed the use of drugs "extensive" among youth. Ohio law considers marijuana a drug.

Brown said Albert Cook, chief investigator for the probe, has been extremely successful in using three youths garbed as hippies to get buys.

"They're real conservative boys," Brown said. "They have made buys in Cincinnati where police were unable to."

Brown said his office has worked closely with local police informing them of all buys made by the undercover hippies.

He said his office is quietly assisting in the establishment of drug action committees in communities throughout the state.

mine, in his words, if the girl's death "may have resulted from the act or negligence of a person or persons other than the deceased."

Arguing in a Luzerne County, Pa., court for an autopsy to be performed on the girl's body, Dinis said his purpose in the inquest is to resolve doubts surrounding the circumstances of the death. A hearing is scheduled Aug. 25 on his request for exhumation of the body for an autopsy. Miss Kopechne was buried in Plymouth, Pa.

Assistant district attorneys who have conducted inquests in district courts in Massachusetts point out major differences between inquests and trials.

There is no accused at an inquest and no prosecution and defense as such.

They point out that the atmosphere at an inquest is less rigid than at a trial. Evidence, presented solely by the district attorney, is known to wander occasionally into types of testimony that the defense would successfully object to at a trial.

Said one assistant district attorney, "The judge may interrupt and say, 'That's too far afield,' but it's not the fine control you have in a trial where you have prosecution and defense.

"The prosecutor has no part in the determination. At the conclusion, he does not get up and argue a case."

After all the evidence is in, the judge files a written report detailing his findings, step by step, and giving his conclusion.

The determination might be of suicide or of accidental death or of homicide or of some lesser legal finding such as negligence.

The report may be used as the basis for bringing a case to the grand jury, or it may be ignored. That decision is up to the prosecutor.

Kennedy pleaded guilty a week after the accident to a charge of leaving the scene of an accident. Judge James A.

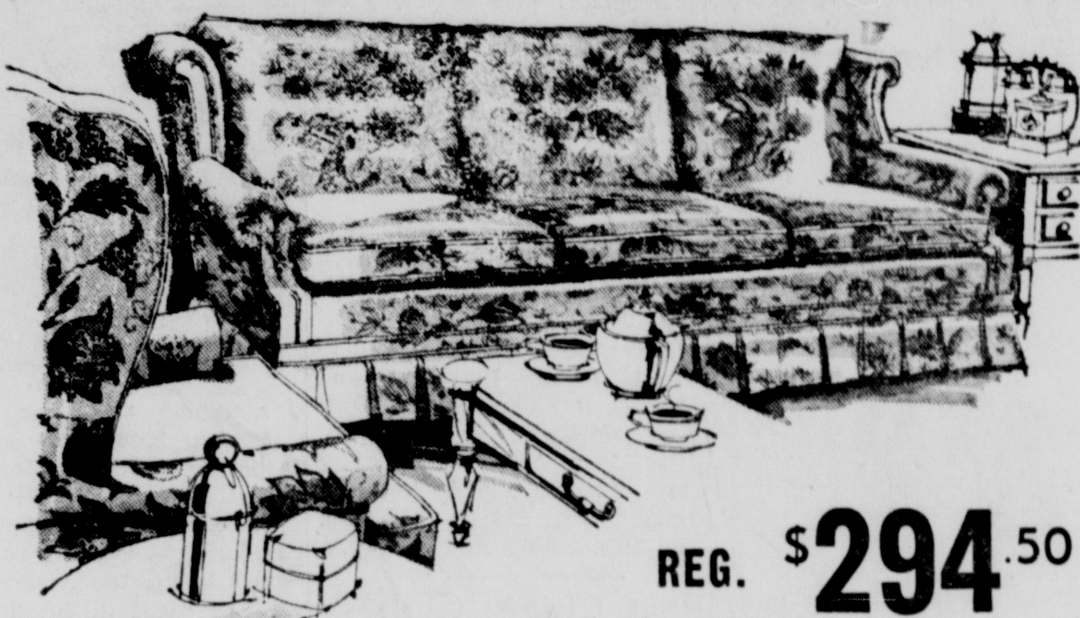

Boyle in Edgartown District Court sentenced him to the minimum two months in jail, suspended for one year. The inquest will take place before the same judge and court.

Dr. Donald R. Mills, associate medical examiner, ruled Miss Kopechne died of drowning. He said he did not conduct an autopsy after reporting the death to Dinis's office and reaching agreement none was needed.

Judge Boyle ruled that the inquest would be open to the press.

Lumberjack? Ohio Fair Has Your Contest

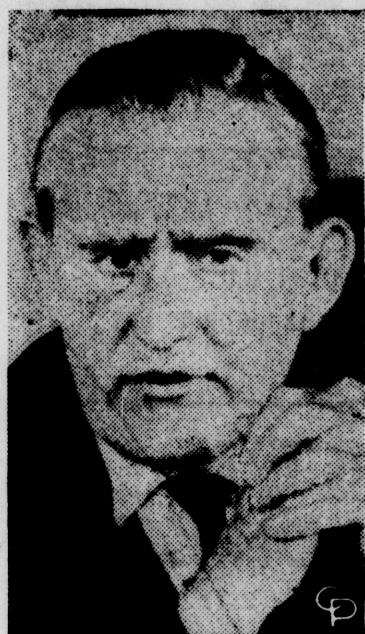

One of the new features being added to the Ohio State Fair this year is a "Woodsmen Show", it was announced Wednesday by Fred E. Morr, Director of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources.

The event will consist of loggers from across the United States and Canada competing in three categories: chopping, cross-cut (two-man), and chain saw (unlimited). A "Logging Champ" trophy will be awarded to the overall winner Aug. 31.

The competition will be held at 3 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 23; Sunday, Aug. 24; Saturday, Aug. 30 and Sunday, Aug. 31 at the Natural Resources area on the Fairgrounds.

Registration will be held at 2 p.m. each day prior to the competition at the east end of the lake, located within the Natural Resources area.

The contest is open to everyone. Anyone desirous of competing, may obtain additional information by contacting the Ohio Department of Natural Resources.

"REVOLUTION" — Holding a news conference in Stormont, Northern Ireland, Premier James Chichester-Clark brands the violence between Catholics and Protestants a "revolution" triggered by supporters of the Irish Republic to the south "and other sinister elements."

Why A Kennedy Inquest? It's To 'Clear The Air'

By PETER BREWER
Associated Press Writer
EDGARTOWN, Mass. (AP) — The inquest that opens on Sept. 3 into the death of Mary Jo Kopechne is a long-established way in Massachusetts law to determine the legal cause of death, as distinct from the medical cause.

What can the inquest hope to accomplish?

In the words of one former prosecutor, "An inquest ... is used to clear the air and close the books publicly on a case about which questions have arisen."

Miss Kopechne, 28, a Washington, D.C. secretary, was killed July 18 when a car driven by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts went off a bridge into a pond on Chappaquiddick Island. The accident went unreported for nine hours.

Dist. Atty. Edmund Dinis sought and obtained the court order for the inquest to determine, in his words, if the girl's death "may have resulted from the act or negligence of a person or persons other than the deceased."

Arguing in a Luzerne County, Pa., court for an autopsy to be performed on the girl's body, Dinis said his purpose in the inquest is to resolve doubts surrounding the circumstances of the death. A hearing is scheduled Aug. 25 on his request for exhumation of the body for an autopsy. Miss Kopechne was buried in Plymouth, Pa.

Assistant district attorneys who have conducted inquests in district courts in Massachusetts point out major differences between inquests and trials.

There is no accused at an inquest and no prosecution and defense as such.

They point out that the atmosphere at an inquest is less rigid than at a trial. Evidence, presented solely by the district attorney, is known to wander occasionally into types of testimony that the defense would successfully object to at a trial.

Said one assistant district attorney, "The judge may interrupt and say, 'That's too far afield,' but it's not the fine control you have in a trial where you have prosecution and defense.

"The prosecutor has no part in the determination. At the conclusion, he does not get up and argue a case."

After all the evidence is in, the judge files a written report detailing his findings, step by step, and giving his conclusion.

The determination might be of suicide or of accidental death or of homicide or of some lesser legal finding such as negligence.

The report may be used as the basis for bringing a case to the grand jury, or it may be ignored. That decision is up to the prosecutor.

Kennedy pleaded guilty a week after the accident to a charge of leaving the scene of an accident. Judge James A.

Boyle in Edgartown District Court sentenced him to the minimum two months in jail, suspended for one year. The inquest will take place before the same judge and court.

Dr. Donald R. Mills, associate medical examiner, ruled Miss Kopechne died of drowning. He said he did not conduct an autopsy after reporting the death to Dinis's office and reaching agreement none was needed.

Judge Boyle ruled that the inquest would be open to the press.

That Dirty Shirt May Cover Badge

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The hippie with the scraggy beard and the dirty jeans asking where he can buy a fix may not be as freaked as he appears.

He could be one of the drug investigators on the staff of Atty. Gen. Paul W. Brown who for the past several months has been probing the drug problem in Ohio.

Brown's report will be ready for Gov. James A. Rhodes in two weeks. He said it showed the use of drugs "extensive" among youth. Ohio law considers marijuana a drug.

Brown said Albert Cook, chief investigator for the probe, has been extremely successful in using three youths garbed as hippies to get buys.

"They're real conservative boys," Brown said. "They have made buys in Cincinnati where police were unable to."

Brown said his office has worked closely with local police informing them of all buys made by the undercover hippies.

He said his office is quietly assisting in the establishment of drug action committees in communities throughout the state.

Farewell Party Fetes Mrs. Richards

Mr. and Mrs. Donald D. Fortner, Reynoldsburg, hosted a farewell dinner party in their home recently for their daughter, Janice, (Mrs. Craig Richards) who will leave this week to join her husband, serving with the U.S. Air Force in Japan. They expect to remain in Japan for two years. They are former residents of Circleville and Pickaway County.

An array of multi-colored summer flowers predominating the colors of red, white and blue were used as decorations along with designs of miniature airplanes giving color and a patriotic touch to the home and dinner table.

The day was spent in visiting and taking pictures. A highlight of the day was a telephone call from their son, Donnie Fortner, stationed in El Toro, Calif. He talked with each member of his immediate family and a number of other relatives.

Guests included Arthur Fortner, Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Fortner, New Albany; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Fortner and family, North Vernon, Ind.; Miss Elaine Fortner, Steve Fortner, Lawrence Brooks, Terry Henney, Indianapolis, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Horn, Mr. and Mrs. David Horn and son, Patrick Tatman, Tarlton.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fortner and family, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Poling, Mrs. Roy Stevens, Laurelville; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fortner and family, Wayne Green, Mrs. Forman Skinner, Chillicothe; Mrs. Melvin Hatch, New Albany; Miss Naomi Fortner, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Tigner, Ernest Goldfrederick, Mrs. Delilah Cochenour and son, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Stevens and family, Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. David Spires of Lancaster, Roger Schmitt of Cincinnati, the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Fortner and daughters, Debbie and Jeannie.

Fashions In Flowers Fair Event

A complete wedding ensemble, an array of 12 to 15 dresses in various shades of the rainbow, three models, and flowers, flowers, flowers. These are what's in store for visitors to the Ohio State Fair on Sunday, Aug. 24 in the Arts and Crafts Building auditorium.

A complete formal bridal outfit done with fresh flowers from California highlights the show.

Aside from the fashion show, a lecture on the proper way of wearing flowers will be presented. Tips will also be given on the effective uses of fresh flowers in weddings, from the bridal gown down to the altar setting.

Fruit pies will taste fresh-baked if reheated in a moderate oven for ten minutes before serving.

Women of the East Ringgold United Methodist Church will hold a household shower honoring Goldie Barr at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the home of Ruth Peters, East Ringgold.

WSCS Meeting Has Program On Pakistan

Mrs. Rosemary Flowers presented the program during the recent meeting of Women's Society of Christian Service of Calvary United Methodist Church.

Mrs. W. C. Shasteen opened the meeting, held in the church annex, with prayer. Mrs. G. H. Niswender read an article entitled "Reconciliation In Prayer" from Good News. Mrs. Shasteen said the retreat at Camp Otterbein will be Sept.

12 and 13. Reservations must be made by Sept. 7 to Mrs. Shasteen.

Mrs. Flowers showed slides and reviewed some of the history of Pakistan, the subject of her program.

Mrs. Arthur Hoy, Mrs. Dale

DeLong, Mrs. Russell Archer and Mrs. Louis Gerlach participated in a skit. Mrs. Flowers closed the program with prayer. Mrs. Bill Ankrom, hostess for the evening served refreshments to the 22 members and three guests attending.

It Was Fun, But It's All Gone Now!

PASS CHRISTIAN, Miss. (AP) — This was a great spot for a weekend. Just the place to fish, or go crabbing in back bay or for a snooze among the tall, pungent pines.

And eat! Why, you couldn't get a better steak or stuffed flounder than at places like Annie's or Benny French's. And the crabs at Sylvester's, over at Henderson Point, were always big and fat. The swimming was good, too, with that big, inviting beach just around the curve on Highway 90.

Well, it's gone now. Hurricane Camille's sledgehammer winds hit hardest along here. Gov. John Bell Williams ordered the last of its people out because of a possible epidemic.

The beach is there but it's hard to find a building undamaged in this town of 4,100 or down in Pass Christian Isles, just where the bridge over Bay St. Louis ends. The homicidal hurricane's 190 miles an hour winds stripped the tracks from the Louisville & Nashville railroad's trestle across the bay.

The people of Pass Christian are friendly. Camille didn't rob them of that, though it took almost everything else. The greeting "the Pass" today was: "Have you lost everything? Me, too!"

Woodrow Wilson's "Little Dixie White House," where he sought escape from Washington's wintry days, is here. Whether it's still standing, no one is sure. There just hasn't been time to check on what's left. The living and dead are just too important.

Pass Christian's little business district is in shambles. The Hancock County Bank building is pretty sturdy but it faces the open Gulf and took quite a pounding.

Just down the street is Wambsgans' bakery where you could get that good, hot pan bread and those great jelly doughnuts after church on Sunday. Camille's eye swooped right down that street and the little frame bakery didn't have much of a chance.

The City Hall is still standing, one of the few buildings left erect. Two men found its doors locked when they tried to use it as a temporary morgue.

They had to find a place for the body in the back of their pickup truck. They battered down the door with chunks of

McCarthy's Separate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., has separated from his wife Abigail, the Washington Star says. The newspaper said Wednesday McCarthy, an unsuccessful candidate for the 1968 Democratic presidential nomination, had moved from their home to a hotel apartment.

driftwood blown in from the Gulf.

A Seabee battalion moved in to lead the cleanup effort, now that the governor's evacuation order left the town deserted.

Almost deserted. An elderly woman clutching a small, trembling dog looked for transportation to her home.

Derby News

Mrs. Georgia Sweet — 869-2462

Deepest sympathy is extended to Mrs. Dwight Spangler and family and Mrs. Stella Funk and family and other relatives on the death of their brother Murl Jones who passed away in a Delaware, Ohio hospital last Monday. Services were held at the Bennett and Brown Funeral Home in Delaware on Thursday and then to Pleasant Cemetery where graveside services were held with the Reverend Lillian Wright assisting. Mr. Jones was 64.

The Derby Little Leaguers and their families enjoyed a picnic on Sunday in Darby Metropolitan Park near Darbydale, and from all reports a nice time was had by all.

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Spires, Karen and Karl, spent a week vacationing in New York State and returned a few days ago.

On the sick list the past week were Mrs. Jack Hughes, ill at her home and Billie Lou Reay, daughter of Bill Reay, who was a patient in Fayette Memorial hospital last week.

Married were Miss Verna Jean Cullen, and Charles Wickham Jr., (formerly of here) in a wedding ceremony in the Grove City Methodist Church on Saturday, August 16.

Happy birthday to Joyce McPherson-August 19; Louis Hill-August 20; Sue Lane Sheets-August 22; Barbara Vance-August 23.

Haynsworth Considered As 'Restraining Force'

By BARRY SCHWEID
WASHINGTON (AP) — The genteel background and cautious judicial record of Clement Haynsworth Jr. suggest he will operate as a restraining force on the Supreme Court.

He meets the stated and unstated standards of President Nixon and Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell for lifetime appointment of the highest court in the land.

Like Warren E. Burger, the new chief justice, Haynsworth is experienced, undramatic, conservative and evidently reluctant to embark on judicial adventures.

In the past, once placed on the high court, judges often have discovered within themselves a long-dormant spirit of inventiveness—to the consternation of their presidents.

If Judge Haynsworth makes such a discovery it will be a vast surprise to those familiar with his record.

In 12 years on the U. S. Circuit Court at Richmond, Va., Haynsworth has shown flashes of judicial independence but done little to disturb the status quo. The convicted usually remained convicted—which must be cheering news to "law and order" proponents and critics of the Supreme Court.

A fifth-generation Greenville, S. C., lawyer who cultivates camellias and favors symphonic music, Haynsworth is tradition-minded.

Dissenting in 1962 from a major school desegregation order, he wrote feelingly of the "practical, difficult problems" school boards encounter in adopting an attendance system that "counters social customs and patterns of conduct, which, over a period of centuries, have become deeply ingrained in a people."

At the same time, he wrote feelingly of the emotional problems some Negro school children may experience in being assigned to mostly white schools.

Charges by some civil rights leaders that Haynsworth is a segregationist appear, on the record, to be more rhetoric than fact. He has voted to enforce the Supreme Court's 1954 school desegregation decision. And yet, he has also supported freedom-of-choice attendance plans that represent only grudgingly acceptance of that decision.

The important thing, to Haynsworth, is that the pupil and parent really exercised a free choice of schools. The important thing to the Supreme Court has been whether the plan is the most effective way to break down segregation.

In 1963 he dissented from a circuit court ruling that federally aided hospital could not exclude Negro physicians or patients. He doubted that a grant to a private hospital brought the 14th amendment's anti-discrimination principles into play.

But two years later Haynsworth ordered the integration of the North Carolina Dental Society.

Conservatives are likely to appreciate Haynsworth's presence on the court particularly when the judges grapple with criminal law.

Former Justice Abe Fortas, the man he replaces, was one of the five justices who discerned in the Fifth Amendment the right of a suspect to remain silent under police questioning and to have a lawyer at his side. Former Chief Justice Earl Warren was another of the five.

Fortas, moreover, was developing into the court's foremost theoretician in the criminal field. He liberalized the law's attitude toward juvenile offenders and narrowly lost a similar drive to change its view of alcoholics.

Haynsworth could serve to restrain this trend.

There is much in Haynsworth's record to suggest he will adhere to the hard line favored by the President and attorney general.

In 1964, for example, he ruled a confession obtained from a rape-murder suspect could be used at trial, though the confession came only after the man had been held 16 days without seeing a lawyer or visitors.

And in 1966—in a move eventually upheld by the Supreme Court—he expanded the power of police to search a man's home for evidence.

On the other hand, in 1966 and 1967 Haynsworth pioneered in opening the federal courts to habeas corpus appeals from state prisoners.

At the moment, the court may be on the verge of a major decision regarding capital punishment.

Guessing how Haynsworth will stand is chancy. His "track" record shows no abhorrence of the death penalty, though, and last year he dissented from the circuit court's nullification of North Carolina's death penalty system.

Organized labor is uneasy about Haynsworth's selection.

His background is corporate law. Before he was appointed to the circuit court he was a director of eight corporations and had holdings in banking, insurance, textiles, railroads, radio

The main case in point for labor's concern is his 1963 vote that Deering Milliken, Inc., could close one of its plants to avoid bargaining with the Textile Workers of America—a position eventually reversed by the Supreme Court.

GI Deafness Laid To Army's Failure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of U.S. soldiers suffer hearing loss each year—most of them in training—because the Army doesn't supply proper protection against the ear-damaging noises of tanks, artillery, firing ranges and helicopters.

The Army said precise figures aren't available—only this year has an effort begun to chart the scope of the problem. But one of the Army's top hearing specialists estimated that more than half the 500,000 men who go through combat training each year suffer hearing loss so serious they could be ruled out of combat.

Dr. Jerry L. Northern, chief audiologist at Walter Reed Army Hospital's hearing center, said he based his estimate on a study made at Ft. Jackson, S.C., where investigators found many men suffered hearing losses that forced removal from the job for which they trained.

Such a move requires a hearing loss rated as H3. The study showed 52.7 per cent of the soldiers permanently assigned to Ft. Jackson had such a rating. Another 23.5 per cent had an H2 ranking, which indicates a lesser loss of hearing.

Although Northern's boss, Dr. Thomas J. Nigles, recently said "the chances that a soldier would need a hearing aid after 20 years is 10 times greater than a civilian," inquiries disclosed the army has pursued no standard policy of providing devices to protect soldiers' hearing.

In 1963, the surgeon general's office recommended that each Army recruit receive a pair of ear plugs "individually fitted to each ear."

This recommendation has not been implemented. Some recruits are given ear plugs, but they are not individually fitted.

And this spring, Army hearing specialists discovered that even the wearing of the standard-issue ear plugs wasn't enforced on the rifle ranges at the basic training camp at Ft. Dix, N.J.

In fact, the specialists said, range officials actively discouraged the use of ear plugs during some exercises, even though research shows the sound of four shots from an M16 rifle is enough to cause measurable hearing loss to an unprotected ear.

After the hearing experts issued their report, Ft. Dix officials said they began requiring trainees to wear the ear plugs.

At the Army's tank training school in Ft. Knox, Ky., partial deafness is accepted matter-of-factly by the men.

"I'm completely deaf at some high frequencies," said S. Sgt. Harry W. Griffin, of Raleigh, N.C., a veteran 20 years in uniform. "Most of the old timers have this problem. I never used ear plugs. It was kind of hard getting them to fit my ears."

"They don't do any good anyway," added Sgt. I.C. Mike Kromoff, 31, of Lorain, Ohio, who said he had an H2 hearing loss rating. "All tankers are H2. You get used to it."

Tank trainees are given the standard-issue ear plugs. A reporter wearing these ear plugs felt physical pain—like someone poking hard at his eardrum with a blunt stick—when the 90mm cannon of an M48 tank was fired nearby.

One day this week, many of the 104 trainees and nearly all the 40 instructors on the Ft. Knox range were exposed to the pounding noise of 832 rounds fired during a training session. A reporter watched and listened for only two hours, but 16 hours later his ears were still ringing.

Council Hears Red Cross Director

Mrs. Roliff Wolford, representing the American Red Cross, was the speaker at the Pickaway County Community Services Council monthly luncheon Tuesday at Pickaway Arms. The purpose of the council is to exchange information and ideas of community service organizations.

As executive secretary of the Pickaway County Chapter American Red Cross, Mrs. Wolford described the organization from its beginning 105 years ago to say that the program's policy is still followed by the Red Cross today — to save lives with "Neighbor Helping Neighbor."

Of the ten programs designed for this purpose and with which persons are familiar are the Red Cross Bloodmobile which, through nine visits a year to Circleville, provides total blood needs for all residents of Pickaway County and their families; First Aid and Home Nursing courses provided by volunteer instructors; Red Cross Swim Program; Volunteer and Volunteer services to Berger and Chillicothe VA Hospital, nursing and rest homes, private homes and at chapter headquarters.

Services to military families and Aid to Disaster Victims are mandatory services American National Red Cross has been chartered by Congress to provide. According to Mrs. Wolford, of the many services offered to servicemen and their families, the one most often

Doctors Get $7.7 Million In Ohio Medicaid Payments

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Doctors in Ohio received $7.7 million for treating welfare patients under the Medicaid program in the year which ended June 30, State Auditor Roger Cloud reported Wednesday.

Of the total $101 million paid for medical services for welfare patients during the last fiscal year, payments to physicians made up 7.6 per cent.

According to the report payments to physicians increased from $5.3 million to $7.7 million in one year.

Doctors charge Medicaid patients regular fees and send the bill to the state which pays 60 per cent of what the physicians charge.

The numbers of cases reported for treatment increased by 116,000 to 717,400.

Franklin County set two records. It received $937,896.32, the largest payment to physicians in any single county, and also recorded the highest single payment — $152,782.32 to Dr. A. O. Allenius and Associates, a group of osteopaths in Columbus.

A breakdown of spending under the program showed the following:

Hospitals received $40 million or 39.3 per cent; extended care nursing homes $33.3 million or 39.3 per cent; extended care 32.8 per cent; medical practitioners $12.5 million or 12.3 per cent; pharmacies $13.9 million or 13.7 per cent; all other categories $1.9 million or 1.9 per cent.

Mrs. Wolford pointed out that the Red Cross never duplicates a service which is already being offered by some other organization or agency in the community. If a person needs assistance of any kind which is not available otherwise, the Red Cross steps in to meet the need. She also reminded council members that there is never a charge for Red Cross service. Pickaway Community Fund is their only source of income. "When we give to the Community Fund, we are supporting this organization 'Neighbor Helping Neighbor' policy here in Pickaway County," she said.

All Pickaway County service organizations are represented in the recently formed service council. Through the exchange of information by member representatives, the council hopes to effect better service to the community.

How Weather Looks Today

Official Weather Bureau summary for Ohio:

Crisp, clear weather covers most of Ohio this morning with a hint of fall in the air. Clouds cover the southern edge of the state. In the northern counties the mercury dropped into the 40s during the pre dawn hours.

A large cool high pressure system is centered over Lake Superior this morning dominating the weather over the northeastern quarter of the nation. There is a chance of a shower this morning in extreme southwestern Ohio but sunny skies will hold sway over the rest of the state. The high pressure system will drift gradually southeastward into northern Ohio by Friday morning.

Under the influence of this high pressure dry weather will persist through the end of the week with sunny mild afternoons and cool clear nights.

—FORECASTS—

CENTRAL, EAST CENTRAL AND SOUTHEAST OHIO — Sunny and mild today, highs in the upper 70s and low 80s. Clear and cool again tonight, lows in the low and mid 50s. Fair with little temperature change Friday, highs in the low 80s. Fair and continued mild Saturday.

SOUTHWEST OHIO — Partly cloudy and mild with chance of showers today, highs in the upper 70s and low 80s. Mostly fair tonight and Friday. Cool tonight, lows in the mid and upper 50s. Not much temperature change Friday, highs in the low 80s. Generally fair and mild Saturday.

GI Deafness Laid To Army's Failure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of U.S. soldiers suffer hearing loss each year—most of them in training—because the Army doesn't supply proper protection against the ear-damaging noises of tanks, artillery, firing ranges and helicopters.

The Army said precise figures aren't available—only this year has an effort begun to chart the scope of the problem. But one of the Army's top hearing specialists estimated that more than half the 500,000 men who go through combat training each year suffer hearing loss so serious they could be ruled out of combat.

Dr. Jerry L. Northern, chief audiologist at Walter Reed Army Hospital's hearing center, said he based his estimate on a study made at Ft. Jackson, S.C., where investigators found many men suffered hearing losses that forced removal from the job for which they trained.

Such a move requires a hearing loss rated as H3. The study showed 52.7 per cent of the soldiers permanently assigned to Ft. Jackson had such a rating. Another 23.5 per cent had an H2 ranking, which indicates a lesser loss of hearing.

Although Northern's boss, Dr. Thomas J. Nigles, recently said "the chances that a soldier would need a hearing aid after 20 years is 10 times greater than a civilian," inquiries disclosed the army has pursued no standard policy of providing devices to protect soldiers' hearing.

In 1963, the surgeon general's office recommended that each Army recruit receive a pair of ear plugs "individually fitted to each ear."

This recommendation has not been implemented. Some recruits are given ear plugs, but they are not individually fitted.

And this spring, Army hearing specialists discovered that even the wearing of the standard-issue ear plugs wasn't enforced on the rifle ranges at the basic training camp at Ft. Dix, N.J.

In fact, the specialists said, range officials actively discouraged the use of ear plugs during some exercises, even though re-

California Hopes To Cut Use Of DDT

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California hopes to cut agricultural use of the pesticide DDT in half next year through new regulations which would ban its use in 55 specific cases. Agriculture Director Jerry W. Fielder announced the proposed regulations Wednesday. He said DDT and a similar pesticide, DDD, would be allowed after Jan. 1 only in cases where a suitable substitute has not been developed.

Earlier this summer Fielder announced regulations to phase out the use of the chemicals in homes and gardens and in dust form on farms.

The bug killers are criticized by conservationists and some scientists who say they are harmful to the environment because they retain their potency.

Council Hears Red Cross Director

Mrs. Roliff Wolford, representing the American Red Cross, was the speaker at the Pickaway County Community Services Council monthly luncheon Tuesday at Pickaway Arms. The purpose of the council is to exchange information and ideas of community service organizations.

As executive secretary of the Pickaway County Chapter American Red Cross, Mrs. Wolford described the organization from its beginning 105 years ago to say that the program's policy is still followed by the Red Cross today — to save lives with "Neighbor Helping Neighbor."

Of the ten programs designed for this purpose and with which persons are familiar are the Red Cross Bloodmobile which, through nine visits a year to Circleville, provides total blood needs for all residents of Pickaway County and their families; First Aid and Home Nursing courses provided by volunteer instructors; Red Cross Swim Program; Volunteer and Volunteer services to Berger and Chillicothe VA Hospital, nursing and rest homes, private homes and at chapter headquarters.

Services to military families and Aid to Disaster Victims are mandatory services American National Red Cross has been chartered by Congress to provide. According to Mrs. Wolford, of the many services offered to servicemen and their families, the one most often

Doctors Get $7.7 Million In Ohio Medicaid Payments

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Doctors in Ohio received $7.7 million for treating welfare patients under the Medicaid program in the year which ended June 30, State Auditor Roger Cloud reported Wednesday.

Of the total $101 million paid for medical services for welfare patients during the last fiscal year, payments to physicians made up 7.6 per cent.

According to the report payments to physicians increased from $5.3 million to $7.7 million in one year.

Doctors charge Medicaid patients regular fees and send the bill to the state which pays 60 per cent of what the physicians charge.

The numbers of cases reported for treatment increased by 116,000 to 717,400. Franklin County set two records. It received $937,896.32, the largest payment to physicians in any single county, and also recorded the highest single payment — $152,782.32 to Dr. A. O. Allenius and Associates, a group of osteopaths in Columbus.

A breakdown of spending under the program showed the following:

Hospitals received $40 million or 39.3 per cent; extended care nursing homes $33.3 million or 39.3 per cent; extended care 32.8 per cent; medical practitioners $12.5 million or 12.3 per cent; pharmacies $13.9 million or 13.7 per cent; all other categories $1.9 million or 1.9 per cent.

In disaster, Red Cross is committed to provide shelter, mass care and rehabilitation for disaster victims.

Mrs. Wolford pointed out that the Red Cross never duplicates a service which is already being offered by some other organization or agency in the community. If a person needs assistance of any kind which is not available otherwise, the Red Cross steps in to meet the need. She also reminded council members that there is never a charge for Red Cross service. Pickaway Community Fund is their only source of income.

"When we give to the Community Fund, we are supporting this organization," "Neighbor Helping Neighbor" policy here in Pickaway County," she said. All Pickaway County service organizations are represented in the recently formed service council. Through the exchange of information by member representatives, the council hopes to effect better service to the community.

How Weather Looks Today

OHIO WEATHER SUMMARY
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Official Weather Bureau summary for Ohio:

Crisp, clear weather covers most of Ohio this morning with a hint of fall in the air. Clouds cover the southern edge of the state. In the northern counties the mercury dropped into the 40s during the pre dawn hours.

A large cool high pressure system is centered over Lake Superior this morning dominating the weather over the northeastern quarter of the nation. There is a chance of a shower this morning in extreme southwestern Ohio but sunny skies will hold sway over the rest of the state. The high pressure system will drift gradually southeastward into northern Ohio by Friday morning.

Under the influence of this high pressure dry weather will persist through the end of the week with sunny mild afternoons and cool clear nights.

—FORECASTS—

CENTRAL, EAST CENTRAL AND SOUTHEAST OHIO — Sunny and mild today, highs in the upper 70s and low 80s. Clear and cool again tonight, lows in the low and mid 50s. Fair with little temperature change Friday, highs in the low 80s. Fair and continued mild Saturday.

SOUTHWEST OHIO — Partly cloudy and mild with chance of showers today, highs in the upper 70s and low 80s. Mostly fair tonight and Friday. Cool tonight, lows in the mid and upper 50s. Not much temperature change Friday, highs in the low 80s. Generally fair and mild Saturday.

The Children's Corner

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Pickaway County Public Library has a section devoted to books for children. Volumes recently added to the Children's Library are reviewed here.

"A Wolf of My Own" by Jan Wahl. Pictures by Lillian Hoban. It is her birthday. She receives a puppy, but pretends it is a wolf named Fred. "Fred," she says, "it would be just you and me, howling at the moon together, scaring the owls." Lillian Hoban has crayoned her pictures in shimmering colors. They almost seem to dance, as do those of some of the impressionists. Picture Book.

"Jeffrey at Camp" by Syd Hoff. While the other boys swam and rode and hiked about the camp, Jeffrey ate. He liked food better than anything else at camp. Finally, he got a terrible stomach ache and what happened next made Jeffrey into a new boy. Grades 1-3.

"Little Bear Learns to Read the Cookbook" by Janice Brustlein. Illustrated by Mariana. Little Bear longed for an accomplishment of his own, like the White Hen and the Gray Sheep. He especially wished that he could cook. But first things, first. Miss Dimple had a clever idea about teaching Little Bear to read. Each letter of the alphabet stood for a certain kind of food. Little Bear loved to eat, so this method made him an apt pupil. When he had learned to read, he made a big chocolate cake, reading the cookbook himself, of course. Mariana's illustrations are well suited to the text. Grades 1-3.

"Granny and the Indians" by Peggy Parish. Granny Guntz is one of a breed nearly gone in these days of contemporary life. In her sunbonnet, with her gun over her shoulder, she tramps the woods. Miraculously, fish flap into her basket and turkeys drop at her feet. There are some pretty frustrated Indians about, helpless before her feminine aplomb. When she moves in with the Indians and tidies up their wigwams, they take drastic measures. This is a wonderfully witty book for beginning readers. Grades 1-3.

"Young Readers Bible, Revised Standard Version" and "Young Readers Dictionary of the Bible." The Young Readers Bible edition as been designed for children and tailored to their interests. The print is clear and large; there are simple one-color illustrations to relieve the monotony of the solid text. Each book is headed by an explanation of how it came to be written and something of the author.

Companion volume is the "Young Readers Dictionary of the Bible" from the same publishing house. Proper names, events, and terms are defined. With each definition are listed cross-references in the scripture. The phonetic key is easy to follow. The format of these books is attractive and at the back of each is a collection of good maps of Biblical times.

'Sodom' Isn't So Bad, After All

By JOHN VINOCUR
Associated Press Writer

ST. TROPEZ, France (AP) — The French persist in equating this resort with Sodom, which makes it a little hard on the priest who has all those lost souls alighting day after day in his territory.

"Ah, ha," they say to me when I tell them where I'm from," exclaims the Rev. Lucien Baud. "You're from St. Tropez," they say, and give me that little look, you know. I tell them about our sports club, we've got 800 members now, and the museum and our archives that go back to the year 1500, but they don't want to know. That's the myth of St. Tropez. Not much to do about it."

The myth is that Brigitte Bardot will suddenly appear from her villa and do something titillating in public, that everyone is slim and fantastic looking, that the air is so heavy with sex and pleasure that good middle-class daughters will travel to the next town down the road to put a less upsetting postmark on their cards home.

As a result, lines of cars jam into this place on the Mediterranean between Cannes and Toulon. Sometimes they bring 40,000 people in a day into a village that was a winter population of 6,000.

The strollers are of many nationalities—French, American, British, Swedish, German. This year there are apparently many Belgians and Italians washing up here, just as the body of St. Tropez is supposed to have done in the year 68 after Nero cut off his head and had him set adrift from Pisa in an open boat.

While all the ambling and sizing-up is going on, Tropezians are working double and triple shifts in their cafes and bars. Those who don't deal with the tourists do commercial fishing or work at what they call the torpedo factory, a French navy underwater testing station.

"Everyone works hard here, I'd like people to know," Father Baud says. "They have old traditions, and they are strong enough that the local people are not dirtied by any of the questionable things people seem to see. It doesn't penetrate. They have good self-defense mechanisms."

The priest does not hold it against his flock that they often charge outrageous prices. Or that some of the town's picturesque has gone into extra

Indian Woman

Remembers Tradition

WASHINGTON (AP) — Not long ago, a dying woman member of India's Toda tribe demonstrated the strength of long-held customs.

Toda tradition requires that a woman pay respect to an elder clansman by crouching before him and raising his foot toward her head. As the ill woman rode to a hospital, the medical-van driver stopped to pick up two Toda men walking along the way.

When the elders clambered into the van, the sick woman struggled up from her stretcher, brushed aside the nurse's objections and bowed respectfully to the men.

The incident is one of many related in a new book, the "Vanishing Peoples of the Earth."

parking lots, and the zoning laws are allowing small villas to be built atop small villas in outlying areas.

Father Baud is not even mad at the local Communists—700 out of 9,000 voters. They sometimes say the town has sold its soul, live on exploitation and shows contempt for working class vacationers.

When Father Baud reflects a little on why people insist on coming here, in spite of expense and crowds, he turns sly psychologist. He feels many people hope to be reassured about themselves, to think they are with it, as modern as anyone else.

"The biggest satisfaction here, you know, is when they find out they're not shocked and that they can take part," he said. "They're reassured that everything hasn't passed them by and they're still all right—at least in terms of things they think are important. And you know when they're reassured, or even when they're not I suppose, many come to Mass—you'd be surprised at the numbers."

'Sodom' Isn't So Bad, After All

By JOHN VINOCUR
Associated Press Writer

ST. TROPEZ, France (AP) — The French persist in equating this resort with Sodom, which makes it a little hard on the priest who has all those lost souls alighting day after day in his territory.

"Ah, ha," they say to me when I tell them where I'm from," exclaims the Rev. Lucien Baud. "You're from St. Tropez," they say, and give me that little look, you know. I tell them about our sports club, we've got 800 members now, and the museum and our archives that go back to the year 1500, but they don't want to know. That's the myth of St. Tropez. Not much to do about it."

The myth is that Brigitte Bardot will suddenly appear from her villa and do something titillating in public, that everyone is slim and fantastic looking, that the air is so heavy with sex and pleasure that good middle-class daughters will travel to the next town down the road to put a less upsetting postmark on their cards home.

As a result, lines of cars jam into this place on the Mediterranean between Cannes and Toulon. Sometimes they bring 40,000 people in a day into a village that was a winter population of 6,000.

The strollers are of many nationalities—French, American, British, Swedish, German. This year there are apparently many Belgians and Italians washing up here, just as the body of St. Tropez is supposed to have done in the year 68 after Nero cut off his head and had him set adrift from Pisa in an open boat.

While all the ambling and sizing-up is going on, Tropezians are working double and triple shifts in their cafes and bars. Those who don't deal with the tourists do commercial fishing or work at what they call the torpedo factory, a French navy underwater testing station.

"Everyone works hard here. I'd like people to know," Father Baud says. "They have old traditions, and they are strong enough that the local people are not dirtied by any of the questionable things people seem to see. It doesn't penetrate. They have good self-defense mechanisms."

The priest does not hold it against his flock that they often charge outrageous prices. Or that some of the town's picturesque has gone into extra

Indian Woman Remembers Tradition

WASHINGTON (AP) — Not long ago, a dying woman member of India's Toda tribe demonstrated the strength of long-held customs.

Toda tradition requires that a woman pay respect to an elder clansman by crouching before him and raising his foot toward her head. As the ill woman rode to a hospital, the medical-van driver stopped to pick up two Toda men walking along the way.

When the elders clambered into the van, the sick woman struggled up from her stretcher, brushed aside the nurse's objections and bowed respectfully to the men.

The incident is one of many related in a new book, "Vanishing Peoples of the Earth."

parking lots, and the zoning laws are allowing small villas to be built atop small villas in outlying areas.

Father Baud is not even mad at the local Communists—700 out of 4,000 voters. They sometimes say the town has sold its soul, live on exploitation and shows contempt for working class vacationers.

When Father Baud reflects a little on why people insist on coming here, in spite of expense and crowds, he turns sly psychologist. He feels many people hope to be reassured about themselves, to think they are with it, as modern as anyone else.

"The biggest satisfaction here, you know, is when they find out they're not shocked and that they can take part," he said. "They're reassured that everything hasn't passed them by and they're still all right—at least in terms of things they think are important. And you know when they're reassured, or even when they're not I suppose, many come to Mass—you'd be surprised at the numbers."

Nixon To Host Predecessor On 61st Birthday

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon plans an unusual 61st birthday salute to former President Lyndon B. Johnson next week, combined with a tribute to the conservation efforts of Johnson's wife Lady Bird.

The Western White House announced Wednesday that Nixon has invited Johnson and his family to a private, informal luncheon at the oceanfront presidential home here on Johnson's birthday next Wednesday.

Then Nixon and his wife Pat plan to take the Johnsons by plane 800 miles northward into the California redwood forests near Eureka to dedicate a grove of the towering trees to Lady Bird Johnson, who made conservation and beautification her byword.

State Lawmakers Turn To Nature

By WILLIAM J. CONWAY
Associated Press Writer

When state legislatures found time for something other than budgets, taxes and campus protesters this year their thoughts turned to nature.

It was, so to speak, the year of the buzzard—and of the sharp-shinned hawk, and snakes and squirrels and nuts, depending on your state.

North Carolina's General Assembly made the gray squirrel the official state mammal. But it wasn't a snap.

When the bill came up in the House, Rep. Basil D. Barr, the sponsor, told his colleagues: "The gray squirrel is thrifty. He buries nuts."

And Rep. Henry Boshamer commented: "Any animal that buries nuts would be dangerous to this General Assembly."

In Georgia Rep. Ward Edwards introduced a bill to change the state bird from the brown thrasher to the bob white quail. It set off a few flights of oratory.

Quail hunting is a popular pastime in Georgia, Edwards explained, and the creature which makes it possible should be recognized.

But Rep. Sidney Marcus maintained that the brown thrasher had served the state well and said he would offer an amendment to make the brown thrasher state bird emeritus. But the proposal never got to the floor.

Little bluestem—androidopogon scoparius—became the state grass in Nebraska. This was the sort of grass which was most abundant when the pioneer settled there.

Lake Superior agate was chosen as the official rock of Minnesota.

Legislation still pending at last report would make the mushroom Indiana's official fungus.

In snakeless Hawaii, a bill to allow the Honolulu Zoo to import two male, poison-free snakes failed to get through the legislature.

Maryland's lawmakers removed the buzzard from the list of unprotected birds, leaving only the English sparrow, European starling and crow to be killed at will.

Pennsylvania removed the cooper hawk and sharp-shinned hawk from the list of unprotected birds—and thus shielded them from hunters—in the area north of U.S. 22.

The Senate's Republican whip, Albert R. Pechan, observed: "These hawks will be a lot better off if they can read road signs."

The first bill to go through North Dakota's Legislature this year prohibited discrimination against women jockeys. Gov. William L. Guy noted the legislature provided that "all women jockeys shall be permitted to ride a horse" in a race.

"It now appears that, if a dozen or more women jockeys show up for a race, the law permits all of them to ride one horse," the governor said. "This would appear to discriminate somewhat against the horse." But he signed the measure.

The South Carolina Legislature adopted a resolution which called upon New York State to

Some Call It Art; Others Call The Cops

CHICAGO (AP) — A 24-foot-high picture of a nude female had a very brief exhibition Wednesday in downtown Chicago.

Some people called the picture a work of art. Others called the police.

The mural was on the side of a construction shed over the sidewalk where a building is being remodeled.

Phillip Gross, owner of the firm remodeling the building, said he commissioned the mural because he wanted his scaffolding to be decorated with something more interesting than signs warning workers to wear hard hats.

After passers-by gawked at the nude and traffic began to snarl, the picture was ordered taken down and Gross asked his artists to come up with something more conservative.

ban the use of revolving glass doors in New York hotels. The reason: A University of South Carolina basketball player, in New York City for a tournament, suffered a leg cut in an accident in such a door.

Massachusetts eliminated a requirement that the state fire a 21-gun salute every year to mark the Battle of New Orleans 150 miles away as the crow flies and 154 years distant as the clock ticks. Joseph M. Ambrose, adjutant general who filed the bill, griped about the expense and difficulty of assembling crews and field pieces every year and moving them to Boston Common to disturb the peace of people who frequent the park.

Rep. P. C. Collins Jr., a critic of littering, introduced a bill in North Carolina to require a 10 cent deposit on all cans or bottles of soft drinks or beer.

Fearful Oklahoman Kills Son By Error

Police said the man was instructing his wife on the load procedure of a shotgun when the gun discharged, killing the boy.

Slain Actress's Husband Unable To Solve Mystery

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. Polish film director Roman Polanski called his 20-month marriage to slain actress Sharon Tate "the only time of true happiness in my life."

"There were agonies of separation," he told a news conference Tuesday, "which I was always trying to dismiss with laughter and silly jokes."

Polanski offered no clue to the killer or killers of his 26-year-old wife, 8½ months pregnant, who was slain 11 days ago with four others in the Polanski's rented $200,000 mansion in exclusive Bel Air.

He called the conference, he told newsmen, because "you are curious about my relationship with Sharon."

His voice breaking with emotion, the 36-year-old director of "Rosemary's Baby" and other bizarre films spoke of his wife in accented English:

"All of you know how beautiful she was, but few of you know how good she was. She was vulnerable, she couldn't refuse any friendship, she had innumerable friends."

"There was lot of talk about parties going on in our house, which are true. There was constant party. There wasn't an evening without friends."

Polanski said two of the others slain, his Polish friend Wojtyck Frkowsky, 37, and hair stylist Jay Sebring, 35, "smoked pot sometimes." But Miss Tate, he said, "not only didn't use drugs, she didn't touch alcohol, didn't smoke cigarettes."

He said Frkowsky and another victim, coffee heiress Abigail Folger, 26, "were often guests in our house on our evenings."

The fifth slain in the early morning massacre was Steven Parent, 18, a friend of the estate caretaker.

The South Carolina Legislature adopted a resolution which called upon New York State to ban the use of revolving glass doors in New York hotels. The reason: A University of South Carolina basketball player, in New York City for a tournament, suffered a leg cut in an accident in such a door.

Massachusetts eliminated a requirement that the state fire a 21-gun salute every year to mark the Battle of New Orleans 1500 miles away as the crow flies and 154 years distant as the clock ticks. Joseph M. Ambrose, adjutant general who filed the bill, griped about the expense and difficulty of assembling crews and field pieces every year and moving them to Boston Common to disturb the peace of people who frequent the park.

Rep. P. C. Collins Jr., a critic of littering, introduced a bill in North Carolina to require a 10 cent deposit on all cans or bottles of soft drinks or beer.

Phillip Gross, owner of the firm remodeling the building, said he commissioned the mural because he wanted his scaffolding to be decorated with something more interesting than signs warning workers to wear hard hats.

After passers-by gawked at the nude and traffic began to snarl, the picture was ordered taken down and Gross asked his artists to come up with something more conservative.

Some people called the picture a work of art. Others called the police.

The mural was on the side of a construction shed over the sidewalk where a building is being remodeled.

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — An Oklahoma City man, arming himself because he feared trouble during a sanitation workers' strike, accidentally killed his one-year-old son Wednesday.

Police said the man was instructing his wife on the load procedure of a shotgun when the gun discharged, killing the boy.

CHICAGO (AP) — A 24-foot-high picture of a nude female had a very brief exhibition Wednesday in downtown Chicago.

Some people called the picture a work of art. Others called the police.

Phillip Gross, owner of the firm remodeling the building, said he commissioned the mural because he wanted his scaffolding to be decorated with something more interesting than signs warning workers to wear hard hats.

Slain Actress's Husband Unable To Solve Mystery

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. Polish film director Roman Polanski called his 20-month marriage to slain actress Sharon Tate "the only time of true happiness in my life."

"There were agonies of separation," he told a news conference Tuesday, "which I was always trying to dismiss with laughter and silly jokes."

Polanski offered no clue to the killer or killers of his 26-year-old wife, 8½ months pregnant, who was slain 11 days ago with four others in the Polanski's rented $200,000 mansion in exclusive Bel Air.

He called the conference, he told newsmen, because "you are curious about my relationship with Sharon."

His voice breaking with emotion, the 36-year-old director of "Rosemary's Baby" and other bizarre films spoke of his wife in accented English:

"All of you know how beautiful she was, but few of you know how good she was. She was vulnerable, she couldn't refuse any friendship, she had innumerable friends."

"There was lot of talk about parties going on in our house, which are true. There was constant party. There wasn't an evening without friends."

Polanski said two of the others slain, his Polish friend Voytyck Frkowsky, 37, and hair stylist Jay Sebring, 35, "smoked pot sometimes." But Miss Tate, he said, "not only didn't use drugs, she didn't touch alcohol, didn't smoke cigarettes."

He said Frkowsky and another victim, coffee heiress Abigail Folger, 26, "were often guests in our house in our evenings."

The fifth slain in the early morning massacre was Steven Parent, 18, a friend of the estate caretaker.

Former U.N. Aide Succeeds Dr. Kirk

NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Andrew W. Cordier, a former undersecretary at the United Nations, has been named the 15th president of Columbia University.

Cordier, 68, who had been dean of Columbia's School of International Affairs, was named acting president last Aug. 23 after Dr. Grayson Kirk, plagued by student disorders, handed in his resignation.

Buying the kid's stuff, just isn't kid-stuff any more.

It requires planning, care and organization; And often, a lot of travel from one store to another.

May we make a couple of suggestions?

Drive carefully. It's children season.

And do your back-to-school shopping with Master Charge.

You'll enjoy the convenience of being able to say "charge it" just about anywhere in town. From shoes to sporting goods. Clothes to crayons. Books to batons. Towels to trombones. You name it.

Which puts you in a position to take advantage of back-to-school bargains, and pay for them when your money is "in-season."

Nothing beats it from a bookkeeping or budget standpoint. You'll receive only one monthly bill with a record of all your Master Charge purchases. So one check pays everything. Or, if you wish, you may make monthly payments on your balance.

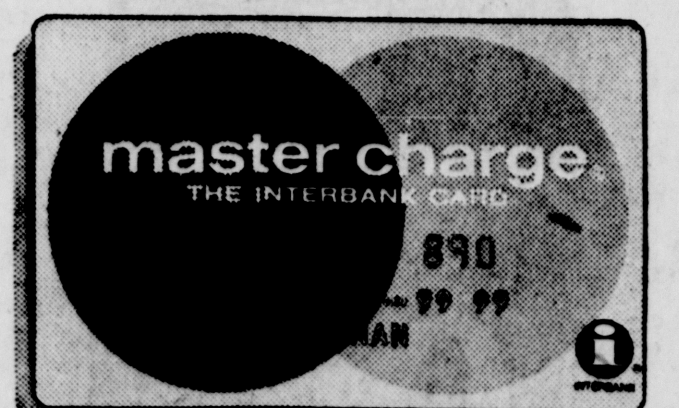

If you need cash, you can walk into any Master Charge bank and find a cash advance waiting for you.

(A Master Charge card is free. There are no annual dues. (Why should you have to pay for the privilege of spending your own money?))

You don't even have to be a Master Charge bank customer to get a card.

Unusual Flowers Thrive In Guy Congrove Garden

DAISY BED — All kinds of daisies are raised successfully in the Guy Congrove garden. There are African, Shasta, and Gloriosa Daisies to name a few. Mrs. Congrove shows off one of these lovely flower beds of Gloriosa Daisies she has every right to be proud of.

By RUTH MONTELIUS

Although most of us around these parts stick to flowers and plants that are native to Ohio, Mrs. Guy Congrove, 575 Renick Ave., is raising unusual and tropical specimens. She has a Passion Vine that is two years old and is thriving. It was started from a little plant given her by a neighbor.

The highly ornamental blossom of this vine is thought to be symbolic of the Crucifixion; the ten sepals and petals suggest the ten apostles; and darker circle, the halo or crown of thorns; the five stamens, the wound; the three styles, the nails; the leaves, the hands of the persecutors. One of the species bears an edible green fruit, that turns yellow when ripe. This is grown commercially for its fruit juice. In Hawaii it is called "Lilikoi."

Mrs. Congrove loves all flowers but prefers the exotic ones. She became interested in tropical blossoms when she recently spent some time with her daughter and son-in-law, when they were stationed at Freeport in the Bahamas with the NASA Tracking Station. In fact some of the stones in the Rock Garden, she is in the midst of building and designing, come from the Bahamas.

Her daughter teaches a class in ceramics so there is a clever and attractive ceramic frog placed strategically in the rock

Timely Tips

Examine squash plants often for crop as plants ripen quickly.

Transplant rooted cuttings to soil when new leaves start to appear.

Oriental poppies and daylilies thrive if they are divided every three years or so. Otherwise the clumps become thick and roots are matted, blooms become sparse and small. These two perennials should be divided now. The entire clumps are dug up by getting a garden fork or spade underneath the root ball and pushing it up without breaking too many main roots. With a hose, wash off the extra soil around the root clumps and see where they can be split. Old overgrown roots and damaged ones should be clipped back. Sometimes it is easiest to split daylily clumps by putting two garden forks, back to back, in center of root clump and pushing them apart by force. The perennial divisions should not be replanted in the garden until the soil has been improved with some rotted compost and fertilizer high in phosphorus for root development or use bonemeal.

If pansy seed was not sown in late July, make no delay in seeding it when August arrives. English Daisies and Forget-me-nots can be sown at the same time.

Pant Colchicums and true autumn-flowering crocuses.

Plant Oriental poppies and Madonna lillies so they can make new leaves before fall.

SOME of the other plants are: Gabriel's Horn, Hibiscus (which she grew from seed), yellow-blooming cactus, Loveplant, and on Oleander. The Oleander is over 100 years old and was a gift from a friend. This is really pampered and is taken into the house in the winter.

There are many other flowers included in the Congrove yard. They have Dahlias that are really beautiful. There are Coral Bells, African Daisies, Shasta Daisies, and miniature Hollyhocks.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Congrove work with the flowers. Mr. Congrove has a very successful vegetable garden in the back of the house with all kinds of vegetables flourishing. FBI Discloses Secret File Of Wiretap Data CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — An FBI official was pressed today for more information about what he called the "June file," a record of wiretap and electronic evidence kept at FBI headquarters in Washington.

Charles Bolz, FBI chief of accounting and records, disclosed existence of the file—apparently for the first time—at a U.S. District Court hearing Tuesday in which Teamsters Union President James Hoffa and three codefendants are seeking to have their jury tampering convictions overturned.

Harvey Silets, representing Larry Campbell of Detroit, drew from Bolz's description of records on what electronic surveillance information is available. Campbell is one of the three men convicted with Hoffa five years ago.

"The use to which these electronic surveillance were put to cannot be determined by those logs?" Silets asked.

Demands are being heard in Congress and elsewhere, and lately in Pickaway County, for controls on the use of pesticides, which are said to be threatening the balance of nature. A report made on the effects of "persistent pesticides" such as DDT by the National Academy of Sciences — National Research Council gives the recommendations that further and more effective steps be taken to reduce the needless inadvertent release of pesticides into the environment. Studies of the possible long-term effects of these should be intensified. The Academy that made this study is an independent organization of leading scientists, financed by various agencies, public and private. A committee of 15 academy scientists carried out the pesticide study under a contract with USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

If an organization with such prestige has made such a report to go easy on pesticides, shouldn't we in the county look again at the practice of spraying our highways and roadways with a large mist-type spray from a fast moving truck? Also a popular gardening magazine has written this about the use of weedkillers. "Among the more serious problems with tomato plants is injury from the weedkiller 2, 4-D. In mild cases caused by drift of the spray, the leaves shrivel up, leading to sunscald of tomatoes and undersized yields. In severe cases entire plants will die. Although 2, 4-D is a highly useful broadleaved, weedkiller, you can't afford to get careless with it since its spray "drift" can kill many crops sensitive to it that are growing as far as a mile away from where the spray is being applied. Even if you don't grow tomatoes, your neighbor may, and losses on his land may be caused by carelessness on yours." So maybe some of our tomato trouble this year can be other than all the wet weather! Isn't this something to think about?

Nature Notes Of Yesteryear

By The Late Leslie L. Pontius
We human beings are very egotistical. We seem to think that this world was created for us only. From our supposedly lofty throne we look down upon the other creatures with scornful and malicious eyes; with our hearts full of contempt and destructiveness and we call them "lesser." I wonder if they are.

Take for instance the crow — in spite of all the persecutions and wars waged against him, he is capable of outwitting us and continues to promulgate and perpetuate his race. I wonder how long the human race would survive if it were chased from its home, shot at with guns, poison put in its food and given no means of defense but a pair of wings and its own intellect.

The discovery of paper making has gone down in the annals of history as one of the greatest achievements of the human race. But where and how did some one learn the art? From an insignificant little wasp. One day an energetic naturalist observed a wasp building a nest. He discovered that she chewed wood fiber and deliberately expectorated a substance that when rolled thin and dried made a material that was light in weight, yet tough and lasting. He reported his observations to some chemists who became interested and began experimenting. They captured some wasps, dissected them and found out what chemicals were used. The rest was easy. Who was the real paper maker? Are you egotistical?

I am as much interested in nature in winter as in summer. I like to discover how the wild creatures spend the winter. A few days after the sub-zero weather I went afield. There was a gentle breeze blowing that had in it a tang of winter. The sun was shining brightly and on the lee-slopes of the hills and in the sheltered coves it was quite warm. At one place there were myriads of insects that resembled mosquitoes.

dancing in the warm sunlight on iridescent lacy wings. Where did they all come from and where were they when it was cold? The answer is beyond me.

On a grassy spot where the sun shone warm, I found some baby grasshoppers feeding and playing as though it were a June day. Last fall, before the frosts came, these grasshoppers had hatched from eggs that had been deposited among the roots of the grasses by the mother grasshopper in mid-summer. When the weather turns cold, they creep under the grass blades and burrow down among the roots. I guess that is where man conceived the idea of creeping into a bed of straw and covering himself with warm blankets.

I turned over a small log and there I found a number of crickets that were quite lively and seemed to resent my intrusion. They had burrowed under this log and had excavated a place that was just big enough for them to turn around in. The debris from their cave had been used to seal the edges of their pocket where it came into contact with the log. I called them compasses, because they were indeed enclosed in a small box, as is the needle of a compass and they could move only as the needle moves, in a circle as though on a pivot.

Under this same log I found a silken ball — it really wasn't a ball, it looked more like a tangle of silk threads. I opened it and found in the center of the tangle was a spider. He had crawled under this log and spun a web and then rolled up in it. Queer isn't it? The silken trap that he used in summer to catch food so that he could live, he had wrapped around his body to keep him warm and alive in winter.

I sometimes wonder how we humans would pass through the rigors of a cold winter if we would be deprived of our warm houses and artificial heat. Are you still egotistical? Do you see where I find joy in a walk in winter?

Nature Notes Of Yesteryear

By The Late Leslie L. Pontius
We human beings are very egotistical. We seem to think that this world was created for us only. From our supposedly lofty throne we look down upon the other creatures with scornful and malicious eyes; with our hearts full of contempt and destructiveness and we call them "lesser." I wonder if they are.

Take for instance the crow — in spite of all the persecutions and wars waged against him, he is capable of outwitting us and continues to promulgate and perpetuate his race. I wonder how long the human race would survive if it were chased from its home, shot at with guns, poison put in its food and given no means of defense but a pair of wings and its own intellect.

The discovery of paper making has gone down in the annals of history as one of the greatest achievements of the human race. But where and how did some one learn the art? From an insignificant little wasp. One day an energetic naturalist observed a wasp building a nest. He discovered that she chewed wood fiber and deliberately expectorated a substance that when rolled thin and dried made a material that was light in weight, yet tough and lasting. He reported his observations to some chemists who became interested and began experimenting. They captured some wasps, dissected them and found out what chemicals were used. The rest was easy. Who was the real paper maker? Are you egotistical?

I am as much interested in nature in winter as in summer. I like to discover how the wild creatures spend the winter. A few days after the sub-zero weather I went afield. There was a gentle breeze blowing that had in it a tang of winter. The sun was shining brightly and on the lee-slopes of the hills and in the sheltered coves it was quite warm. At one place there were myriads of insects that resembled mosquitoes.

dancing in the warm sunlight on iridescent lacy wings. Where did they all come from and where were they when it was cold? The answer is beyond me.

On a grassy spot where the sun shone warm, I found some baby grasshoppers feeding and playing as though it were a June day. Last fall, before the frosts came, these grasshoppers had hatched from eggs that had been deposited among the roots of the grasses by the mother grasshopper in mid-summer. When the weather turns cold, they creep under the grass blades and burrow down among the roots. I guess that is where man conceived the idea of creeping into a bed of straw and covering himself with warm blankets.

I turned over a small log and there I found a number of crickets that were quite lively and seemed to resent my intrusion. They had burrowed under this log and had excavated a place that was just big enough for them to turn around in. The debris from their cave had been used to seal the edges of their pocket where it came into contact with the log. I called them compasses, because they were indeed enclosed in a small box, as is the needle of a compass and they could move only as the needle moves, in a circle as though on a pivot.

Under this same log I found a silken ball — it really wasn't a ball, it looked more like a tangle of silk threads. I opened it and found in the center of the tangle was a spider. He had crawled under this log and spun a web and then rolled up in it. Queer isn't it? The silken trap that he used in summer to catch food so that he could live, he had wrapped around his body to keep him warm and alive in winter.

I sometimes wonder how we humans would pass through the rigors of a cold winter if we would be deprived of our warm houses and artificial heat. Are you still egotistical? Do you see where I find joy in a walk in winter?

Taylor was a St. Louis farmhand at Tulsa until he was called up by the Cardinals last June.

The 27-year-old right-hander, who has spent eight full seasons in the minors, posted a two-hit, 2-1 victory over Cincinnati Wednesday night that dropped the Reds into second place in the National League West, a half game behind Los Angeles, which beat Philadelphia 8-5.

The victory was the sixth against one defeat for Taylor, who has started six games and completed five of them, posting a 1.66 earned run average.

In other National League games, the New York Mets trounced San Francisco 6-0 and moved to within 6½ games of the East Division-leading Chicago Cubs, who lost 6-2 to Atlanta; Pittsburgh edged Houston 1-0, and Montreal outslugged San Diego 11-10.

Los Angeles moved ahead of Philadelphia 6-5 with four runs in the seventh and clinched it with another pair in the eighth. Manny Mota singled in two runs and Wes Parker doubled home two more to key the Dodgers' winning attack.

Jim McAndrew, 5-5, also fired a two-hitter and was backed by Art Shamsky's three-run homer in the Mets' victory over San Francisco and Gaylord Perry. Don Mason got both Giant hits—a double in the first and a

Reds Halted By Taylor; Trail LA By .003 Mark

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A farm boy, recently called up from a farm club, stilled Cincinnati's powerful bats Wednesday night and helped knock the Reds out of first place in the Western Division.

Chuck Taylor, 6-1, yielded only two hits as he pitched St. Louis past Cincinnati 2-1, leaving the Reds .003 behind Los Angeles.

"Taylor just put the screws to us, that's all," said a disappointed Dave Bristol, Cincinnati manager. "When a guy holds you to a run you have to have a shutout. We didn't get it."

Pete Rose singled to open the game and the Reds did not get the ball out of the infield again until the sixth when Alex Johnson hit a blooper to right that second baseman Phil Gagliano made an excellent play on. Tony Perez cracked his 30th homer in the seventh inning to knot the game 1-1 but the Cardinals came back in the bottom half of the inning with a run-scoring single by Gagliano to win.

Taylor, who struck out six and walked only two, went into the game with a 1.75 earned run average. He came up from Tulsa in June.

Gary Nolan, 3-5, pitched admirably and well enough for the Reds to usually score an easy victory.

St. Louis took a 1-0 lead off him in the first as Vada Pinson doubled with two out and Joe Torre followed with a single to plate him. Nolan then held the Cardinals to two hits through the next five innings but they struck for three consecutive singles to open the seventh.

Wayne Granger relieved him and halted the rally but the damage had already been done.

The Reds tangle with the Cardinals again tonight.

Sentimentalist and Four Bits made the 4-3 daily double worth $16.40. The quinella, 1-9, paid $30.60. Attendance was 4,372. Handle totaled $166,239.

Unsigned Keyes Still Negotiates

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Pro football is zeroing in on further expansion... which is more than can be said for the Philadelphia Eagles, who still find Leroy Keyes a tough bird to bag.

Football Commissioner Pete Rozelle says the National and American Leagues may add several more teams between 1972 and 1979.

Meanwhile, Keyes, the Eagles' elusive No. 1 draft pick, is no closer to signing with the NFL team than, say, going to Canada.

"I can't understand why we can't get together," Keyes' business agent, Arthur Morse, said Wednesday. "We're only about $70,000 apart—and when one party is willing to climb down, that isn't too much."

Morse also said a reported offer from a Canadian Football League team was "genuine" and that he was not using it as a lever in negotiations with the Eagles.

He said he would discuss it in Toronto today and Friday, while attending some National Hockey League meetings. Morse described the offer as higher than that of the Eagles but added, "that doesn't make it acceptable."

The Vancouver, B.C. Sun confirmed the Canadian football offer Wednesday. The paper said Merv Dais, a Vancouver businessman, was helping the British Columbia Lions in negotiations with the All-American halfback from Purdue.

The Eagles are reportedly ready to hand Keyes a $170,000 three-year package. Keyes is said to want something in the neighborhood of $225,000.

Rozelle, speaking at a Rotary luncheon in Detroit Wednesday, said that pro football expansion may follow the practice of the National Hockey League by producing six new teams at once.

"I don't know exactly what we'll do, but it is a possibility," Rozelle said. "It's been successful for the hockey people. They just had one his expansion—and that was it. Perhaps that's the way we'll do it."

Rozelle said the American and National football leagues will expand to 32 clubs in two conferences of four, four-team divisions by 1979, although no new clubs will be added before 1972.

The league is looking for exotic cities and may also expand into the South, but Canadian cities will probably be off-limits, Rozelle said.

Reds Halted By Taylor; Trail LA By .003 Mark

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A farm boy, recently called up from a farm club, stilled Cincinnati's powerful bats Wednesday night and helped knock the Reds out of first place in the Western Division.

Chuck Taylor, 6-1, yielded only two hits as he pitched St. Louis past Cincinnati 2-1, leaving the Reds .003 behind Los Angeles.

"Taylor just put the screws to us, that's all," said a disappointed Dave Bristol, Cincinnati manager. "When a guy holds you to a run you have to have a shutout. We didn't get it."

Pete Rose singled to open the game and the Reds did not get the ball out of the infield again until the sixth when Alex Johnson hit a blooper to right that second baseman Phil Gagliano made an excellent play on. Tony Perez cracked his 30th homer in the seventh inning to knot the game 1-1 but the Cardinals came back in the bottom half of the inning with a run-scoring single by Gagliano to win.

Taylor, who struck out six and walked only two, went into the game with a 1.75 earned run average. He came up from Tulsa in June.

Gary Nolan, 3-5, pitched admirably and well enough for the Reds to usually score an easy victory.

St. Louis took a 1-0 lead off him in the first as Vada Pinson doubled with two out and Joe Torre followed with a single to plate him. Nolan then held the Cardinals to two hits through the next five innings but they struck for three consecutive singles to open the seventh.

Wayne Granger relieved him and halted the rally but the damage had already been done.

The Reds tangle with the Cardinals again tonight.

Halos Princess Scioto Winner

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Halos Princess won the featured $1,200 conditioned pace at Scioto Downs Wednesday night to pay $12.40, $6.40 and $5.40. The winner turned a 2:04.4 mile to finish ahead of Success June who paid $3.80 and $2.80 to place and Urbana Blitz, worth $5.60 to show.

Sentimentalist and Four Bitts made the 4-3 daily double worth $16.40. The quinella, 1-9, paid $30.60. Attendance was 4,372. Handle totaled $166,239.

Buckeye 100 Race Friday At Atomic Speedway Oval

Half a dozen of the year's top drivers at Atomic Speedway and leading contenders in the special event over past years have to be considered as likely winners of the upcoming sixth annual Buckeye 100.

Twenty of the speedway's favorites and outstanding drivers from throughout the tri-state area will be competing for the $1,000 first prize from the total purse of $3,500 at Atomic's second super-special of the year Friday night.

Saturday night, will be the rain date or for a hobby stocks special if the sixth annual Buckeye 100 runs on schedule.

Drivers getting top consideration are Larry (Boom Boom) Cannon of Danville, Ill., the defending champion of the Buckeye 100; Bob Morgan and Jim Meeker of Chillicothe, Audie Swartz and Sam Erwin of Portsmouth and Gus Kegan of Green Springs, all double winners this season, and Dean Knittel of Portsmouth, three-time winner of the race.

Swartz, the winner of the earlier Atomic 100 along with the Memorial Championship, was runner-up in the 1957 Buckeye, Erwin, winner of the Firecracker championship, was runner-up last year and copped the second Buckeye.

Rounding out the winners of the first dozen races of the year at Atomic are Bud Frazier of Chillicothe and Al Nunmery of South Point.

The 20 fastest cars will take part in the 100-lap non-stop feature to follow three heats and a consi.

In addition to the $1,000 to the winner, the race will pay

Messersmith Wins, Loses Orioles' Tilt

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Baltimore Orioles don't win every game they play. But they always seem to hurt the other team, one way or another. Just ask Andy Messersmith.

Messersmith, a promising young California pitcher, took a 3-2 decision from the Orioles Wednesday night, but hardly escaped unscathed. He has the bruises to show for his encounter with the American League East's runaway leaders.

Messersmith's mistake was colliding with Baltimore's Boog Powell—a mistake for anyone smaller than the Cardiff Giant. Powell, you see, is 6-foot-4 and weighs 240—figures more suitable for a Giant than they are for Messersmith, who is four inches shorter and 40 pounds lighter.

The collision occurred in the seventh inning when Messersmith covered first on Powell's bouncer. Both players were forced to leave the game. Messersmith with an injured right shoulder and Powell with a sprained left ankle.

In other American League games, Kansas City shut out New York 5-0. Boston edged Minnesota 7-6. Washington clipped Chicago 4-1. Oakland edged Cleveland 2-1 and Detroit dropped Seattle 4-3.

In the National League, St. Louis topped Cincinnati 2-1. Pittsburgh blanked Houston 1-0. Los Angeles defeated Philadelphia 8-5. Montreal trimmed San Diego 11-10. Atlanta downed Chicago 6-2 and New York blanked San Francisco 6-0.

Ken Tatum relieved in the eighth and shut out the Orioles in the last two innings to save Messersmith's 12th victory. Rick Reichardt's two-run single in fifth drove in California's deciding runs as the Angels tagged Dave McNally with his third loss in 20 decisions.

Chico Salmon had a two-run homer for the Orioles and Leo Rodriguez connected for California.

Bills Seek Respectability - - Not Miracles

By DON WATERS

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — When the Buffalo Bills, who had the worst record in pro football last season, hired John Rauch this year, they got a highly successful coach but no miracle worker.

Rauch does expect, however, to bring the Bills back to respectability in the American Football League from 1968's 1-12-1 disaster.

"We have a long way to go," he says.

O. J. Simpson, pro football's most highly touted and most expensive rookie, could help to make the trip a lot shorter.

Simpson, the Heisman Trophy-winning running back from Southern California, was a month late in reporting to the Buffalo training camp because of a contract squabble, but he is a fairly sure bet to nail down a starting berth.

Despite Simpson's potential, Rauch does not plan to make him the Bills' workhorse by giving him the ball 30 or more times every game.

"That's not my style," Rauch said. "I believe in a more balanced attack. In pro football, it's too easy to set up keys and stop a one-man attack."

Simpson's chief competition as a starter comes from Max Anderson, a 5-foot-8 seatback who was the Bills' leading rusher last season.

Bill Enyard, another well-thought-of rookie, might grab the other running back spot.

The Bills' quarterbacking corps is healthy again, after a season that saw Buffalo call on six signal-callers as one after another was sidelined by injuries.

Jack Kemp and Tom Flores both have regained their pre-injury form. Rookie quarterback James Harris also figures to see some work.

The Bills have Haven Moses, Billy Masters and Richard Trapp as receivers, Al Bemiller at center, Stew Barber and Paul Costa at tackle and Billy Shaw and Joe O'Donnell at guard.

O'Donnell, returning after a year's layoff with knee trouble, will be backed up by Julian Numamaker, a rookie who started camp as a defensive tackle.

The Bills' defense, one of the stingiest in the AFL even when other elements of the team couldn't produce, again will have the veteran front four of Ron McDole and Tom Day at the ends and Tom Sestak and Jim Dunaway at tackle.

Paul Guidry, Harry Jacobs and Mike Stratton are the linebackers, Booker Edgerson and Butch Byrd the corner backs and John Pitts and George Saimes the safeties.

Rauch's biggest concern seems to be finding and building reserve strength should injuries plague the team this season as it did last year.

He has spent a good part of training time at that task, as well as teaching his players a new offensive system he brought with him from Oakland.

Buffalo fans, excited by the advent of O.J., dream of a return to the days when the Bills won Eastern Division and league titles. But they probably are a year or two early.

ORDINANCE NO. 81-69

AN ORDINANCE AUTHORIZING THE ISSUANCE OF BONDS BY THE CITY OF CIRCLEVILLE, OHIO, IN ANTICIPATION OF THE COLLECTION OF SPECIAL ASSESSMENTS HERETOFORE LEVIED TO PAY THE PROPERTY OWNERS' PORTION AND THE CITY'S PORTION OF THE COST OF CONSTRUCTING THE INTERCONNECTED STORM SEWERS GENERALLY REFERRED TO AS THE CIRCLEVILLE NORTH STORM SEWER SYSTEM TO SERVE TERRITORY KNOWN AS THE CIRCLEVILLE NORTH AREA AND DECLARING AN EMERGENCY.

WHEREAS, the Council of the City of Circleville, Ohio, has heretofore declared the necessity of improving the sewerage facilities mentioned; and

WHEREAS, notes were issued in anticipation of the bonds herein authorized; and

WHEREAS, the Auditor, as fiscal officer of this City, has heretofore certified the estimated life of the improvements and the maximum maturity of the bonds proposed to be issued;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY the Council of the City of Circleville, Pickaway County, Ohio:

Section 1. That it is hereby declared necessary to issue bonds of the City of Circleville, Ohio, in the principal amount of $163,900 to serve the property owners' portion, in anticipation of the collection of special assessments heretofore levied, and the City's portion of the cost of constructing the inter-connected storm sewers generally referred to as the "Circleville North Storm Sewer System" to serve territory known as the Circleville North Area and in the manner provided in Resolution No. 38-63, adopted April 16, 1963, declaring the necessity of said improvement and to pay off the anticipatory note heretofore issued.

Section 2. Said bonds shall be issued in the principal amount of $163,900 for the purpose aforesaid. The said bonds shall be dated September 1, 1969, shall be issued in the denomination of $5,000 each, shall be numbered from 1 to 33, and shall bear interest at the rate of six per centum (6 per cent) per annum, payable on the first day of June and the first day of December of each year, beginning June 1, 1970, until the principal sum is paid, as evidenced by the coupons attached thereto; provided however, that if the bonds are sold bearing a different rate of interest than herein specified, such bonds shall bear such rate of interest as shall be provided in the resolution of Council approving the award thereof. Such bonds shall mature in their consecutive order of maturity, and shall be payable on December 1, 1971; $18,000 on December 1 in each of the years from 1972 to 1977, both inclusive; and $19,900 on December 1 in each of the years 1978 and 1979, which maturities are hereby determined to be in substantially equal annual installments.

Section 3. Said bonds shall be executed by the Auditor and Mayor, one of whose signatures may be a facsimile signature, and shall bear the corporate seal of said City. Interest coupons attached to said bonds shall bear the facsimile signature of the Auditor printed or lithographed thereon. They shall be designated "North Storm Sewer Improvement Bonds," and shall be payable in lawful money of the United States of America at the office of the legal depository of the City, presently, The Third National Bank of Circleville, Circleville, Ohio.

Section 4. For the purpose of providing the necessary funds to pay the interest on the foregoing issue of bonds promptly when and as the same falls due, and also to provide a fund sufficient to discharge the said bonds at maturity, there shall be and is hereby levied on the taxable property in the City of Circleville, in addition to all other taxes, a direct tax annually during the period said bonds are to run in an amount sufficient to provide funds to pay the interest upon said bonds as when the same fall due, and also to provide a fund for the discharge of the principal of said serial bonds at maturity, which tax shall not be less than the interest and sinking fund tax required by Section 11 of Article XII of the Constitution of Ohio, provided, however, that in each year the assessments described by said bonds are available for the payment of such bonds and are appropriated for such purpose, the amount of such tax shall be reduced by the amount of the assessment so appropriated.

Section 5. Said tax shall be and is hereby ordered computed, certified, levied and extended on the tax duplicate and collected by the same officers, in the same manner and at the same time that taxes for general purposes for each of said years are certified, extended and collected. Said tax shall be placed before and in preference to all other items and for the full amount thereof. The proceeds derived from said tax levy hereby required shall be placed in a separate and distinct fund, which, together with the interest collected on the same shall be irrevocably pledged for the payment of principal and interest on said bonds when and as the same fall due.

Section 6. That all installments of said assessment and all portions thereof, together with interest thereon, shall be applied to the payment of said bonds and interest as the same shall become due and for no other purpose whatsoever.

Section 7. Said bonds shall be first offered at par and accrued interest to the Clerk of the Board of Retirement Fund in his official capacity, and if said officer refuses to take any or all of said bonds, then said bonds not so taken shall be advertised for public sale and sold in the manner provided by law. The proceeds from the sale of said bonds, except the premium accrued interest thereon, and capitalized interest, shall be used for the purpose aforesaid and for no other purpose and be allocated to the improvement herein described.

The premium, accrued and capitalized interest received from such sale shall be transferred to the Bond Retirement Fund to be applied to the payment of the principal and interest of said bonds, in the manner provided by law.

Section 8. The Clerk of Council is hereby authorized and directed to certify a copy of this ordinance to the Auditor of Pickaway County, Ohio, according to law.

Section 9. This ordinance is hereby declared to be an emergency measure necessary for the preservation of the public peace, welfare and safety of this City, and for the further reason that the note of this City issued for this improvement must be retired with the proceeds of the bonds authorized hereat at an early date; wherefore this ordinance shall take effect and be in force immediately upon its passage and approval.

Soviet Vietnam Attitude Disappoints U.S. Officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials are sharply disappointed at the Soviet Union's apparent failure to give any current help in trying to negotiate an end to the war in Vietnam.

In unusually blunt terms, Secretary of State William P. Rogers told a news conference Wednesday he thinks the Russians are not doing "as much as they could" to help stop the fighting in Vietnam and Laos.

Problems of U.S.-Soviet relations arose at several points during the question and answer exchange.

Rogers expressed disappointment that the Soviet government has not yet responded, after more than two months, to a U.S. proposal for starting strategic arms limitations talks, and he had sharp criticism of Soviet policy toward Czechoslovakia.

Some authorities privately have expressed uncertainty about the current course of Soviet policy toward the United States. They raise such questions as whether the Kremlin was annoyed by President Nixon's recent visit to Romania and by changes in U.S. policy toward Communist China.

Rogers said, however, that he believes the Soviets eventually will go into the arms talks as they indicated earlier this year. And he explained the current lack of action on the U.S.-Soviet diplomatic front by saying he thought the leaders in Moscow were occupied with other problems, particularly their border conflict with Communist China.

In reference to the Soviet naval buildup in the Mediterranean, Rogers said the U.S. and its NATO allies have been watching this development closely and will take "any necessary action to be sure that the security of the area is not in any way impaired."

Of the Nixon trip to Romania, Rogers said he had no way of knowing whether that has affecting Soviet thinking, and added:

"I don't think we can conduct our foreign policy based on whether it's going to make Communist China unhappy or the Soviet Union unhappy. We are going to try to improve our relations with all countries, including countries in Eastern Europe."

School Lunch Deficiencies Boycott Target

WASHINGTON (AP) — A boycott of schools that don't offer free or reduced price lunches for poor children is being planned during National School Lunch Week.

John R. Kramer, executive director of the National Council on Hunger and Malnutrition, said parents would be urged to refuse to send children to such schools or to withdraw students in the middle of the day for a free lunch during the week of Oct. 12-17.

"The idea is to dramatize the problem for local school boards," Kramer said.

"We're going to try to get all of the major civil rights and 'people's' groups to conduct a boycott of the schools that don't offer free or reduced price lunches to focus public attention on the need to improve the school lunch program."

Kramer said such groups as the Southern Christian Leadership Conference would participate in planning.

A recent study by Rodney Ashby, Utah's school food services director, indicated that 32.5 million of the nation's 51 million elementary and secondary students do not get school lunches. An estimated 19 million of these are qualified for reduced price meals and another three million should get free lunches, the report said.

Hodges Jurors To Visit Scene

ASHLAND, Ohio (AP) — A jury of six men and six women, plus two alternates, will visit scenes connected with the first-degree murder trial of Mark Hodges today. Testimony won't begin until Friday.

Hodges, 28, is charged with the October, 1967, slaying of Karen Kern, a niece of Ohio AFL-CIO President Frank King. The woman's body, shot eight times and stabbed three times, was found Oct. 30 in a roadside ditch southeast of Perryburg and not far from her Sylvania home.

In opening statements Wednesday, Special Assistant Prosecutor John Halleck of Wood County said the three bullets taken from the woman's body would be introduced into evidence and it would be proven that all three came from Hodges' gun.

Hodges' attorney, Joseph C. DaPore, said a retired Cleveland police ballistics expert, David A. Cowles, would testify that Hodges' gun did not fire the bullets that killed the woman.

Halleck said Robert A. Frazier, head of the FBI's ballistics department and a witness in the trial of Sirhan Sirhan, would testify for the prosecution.

Locations the jury will visit today include the place where the body was found in Wood County, the service station where Hodges worked, and the restaurant where the two allegedly were seen together.

Business Briefs

The Board of Directors of Revco D.S., Inc., large Cleveland-headquartered discount drug center chain, today declared the regular quarterly dividend of five cents per share on the common stock of the company. The quarterly dividend is payable Sept. 19, 1969, to stockholders of record on Sept. 2, 1969.

Schools . . .

Although the new law provides primarily only for a continuation of funds at present levels for general education, it significantly expands special areas of education.

These program expansions, were vocational education, education for the educationally and culturally disadvantaged, aid to precol schools and special education.

An expansion of vocational education in vocational high schools and comprehensive high schools will cost $112.7 million, compared with $77.8 million during the past two years.

Joint vocational districts will receive $20 million, compared with $9 million during the past two years.

School districts will receive $38 million for programs for the disadvantaged, compared with the $13 million they received during the past two years.

Of this, $1.5 million will go to set up day care center programs. The money would be used to subsidize the costs of day care center care for the children of welfare mothers who work or receive job training.

The disadvantaged money goes for programs, such as hot breakfasts, in school district having large number of children whose mothers are on welfare.

Parochial schools will receive $35.8 million, compared with $15 million during the past two years.

The money would be used to supplement the salaries of lay teachers who teach non-religious courses and for non-religious textbooks and other material, services and programs.

School districts will receive $91 million for special education programs, compared with $75 million for special education programs, compared with $75 million during the past two years.

The increases in funds included in the education-tax bill will begin to flow to school districts Aug. 28, according to the state Department of Education.

The new law also includes capital funds for both public education and higher education and operating funds for higher education.

Local school districts will receive $75 million to help build vocational facilities. An additional $1.2 million will go for two pilot area resource centers.

State universities would receive $346 million for capital improvements for 75 projects at all the 11 state universities, one state-affiliated university and branch campuses.
